GENERAL AND REVENUE.

No. 102, dated Camp Mysore, the 10th June 1908.

The Government of His Highness the Maharaja are of opinion that the basis of the Mysore Legislative Council may safely be widened by allotting a certain number of seats thereon to election. Having regard to the constitution of the Mysore Representative Assembly, which is an entirely elected body, representative of popular interests generally, including the local and municipal boards in the State, and also to the desire widely expressed that that Assembly may be allowed to recommend a certain number of persons for nomination to the Legislative Council, the Government resolve to throw open two seats on the Council to members recommended by the Representative Assembly. With this end in view they are pleased to make the following rules under Section 5 of the Mysore Legislative Council Regulation, 1907, as to the conditions under which the two non-official members of the Legislative Council may be selected for nomination:—

Rules for the election of members to the Legislative Council.

I. The nominations to two places on the Legislative Council may be made by Government on the recommendation of the Mysore Representative Assembly.

II. The persons recommended for nomination shall be members of the Representative Assembly, of whom one shall have been returned to such Assembly from the Western Division of the State (consisting of the Districts of Mysore, Hassan, Kadur and Shimoga), and the other from the Eastern Division (consisting of the Districts of Bangalore, Kolar, Tumkur and Chitaldrug).

III. (1) The recommendation shall be made by a clear majority of votes of the members of the Mysore Representative Assembly as a whole, present and voting, at a meeting to be held for the purpose when the Assembly is in session at the annual Dasara gathering. The voting shall be by ballot.

(2) The meeting shall be held at such time and place during the session of the Assembly as may be fixed by Government.

(3) An officer deputed by Government shall attend such meeting and record the votes of the members, and report to Government the names of the persons selected.

IV. When the place of a member nominated on the recommendation of the Representative Assembly as aforesaid becomes vacant otherwise than by efflux of time, it shall only be filled up on a recommendation to be made by the Representative Assembly at its next annual session. No person shall be recommended for such vacancy who has not been returned to the Assembly from the same Division as the member whose place has become vacant.

V. If any name recommended for nomination does not meet with the approval of Government, the Representative Assembly may be asked to recommend another person for nomination in accordance with the above Rules.

The following resolution of the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, No. 5927-5974-3, dated the 24th June 1908, passing orders on certain proposals for the limitation of Telegraph work on Sundays, is hereby published for general information;—

RESOLUTION.

"In the Resolution of the Government of India, No. 3252-3288-3, dated the 27th March 1908, certain proposals for the limitation of Telegraph work on Sundays were published for criticism, with the intimation that any replies which might be furnished would be considered at the end of the first week in May. The replies which have been received from Local Governments and private bodies are generally favourable to the proposals; but modifications have in several cases been suggested regarding points of detail. The Government of India in passing orders have endeavoured, as far as possible, to bring the scheme into accordance with these suggestions.

2. The orders which the Government of India have now passed are as follows:—

(1) In places where there is more than one office, all offices except the principal one will ordinarily be closed; but in the case of a few of the largest towns, one or two of the minor offices which serve outlying localities will also be open for short periods.

(2) First class offices will remain open from 0 hours to 0 hours as at present, except when the office is in a place where there is more than one office and it is not itself the principal office.

(3) In places where there is only one office, and the office ordinarily observes second class hours, or in places where there is more than one office and the principal office observes second class hours, it will be open in all cases for two hours in the morning (8 to 10), and for two hours in the evening (16 to 18).

(4) In places where there is only one office, the office if it ordinarily observes third class hours, will be open for one hour only in the morning (8 to 9), and for one hour in the evening (16 to 17).

(5) Inland telegrams at the lowest rate, at present known as deferred, will not be accepted for transmission at any Telegraph Office on Sundays and the four chief holidays:—viz., Christmas Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday and the King's Birthday.

The Government of India have also approved the following additional proposals which were not mentioned in the resolution already referred to:—

(6) In cases of public emergency the District Magistrate may require a Telegraph office to be kept open specially, beyond its ordinary hours of working.

(7) Any member of the public or Government Official may procure the despatch of an urgent telegram during the hours when an office is closed, if the terminal office is open or its attention can be gained by the payment of extra fees. If both the offices of origin and destination are closed, the extra fee shall be two rupees, or if only one of them is closed, one rupee. The fees will be paid to the telegraphists in the closed offices. A Government Official may recover the cost of the extra fees in the same manner as charges for telegrams are recovered at present, submitting the receipt of a voucher".

THE SECRETARY reported that Mr. K. S. Chandrasekhara Aiyar took his seat as an additional member of the Council.

THE SECRETARY reported that Regulation I of 1908 to amend the Mysore Court Fees Regulation, III of 1900, and Regulation II of 1908 to amend the Mysore Stamp Regulation, II of 1900, had received the assent of His Highness the Maharaja.

MR. T. ANANDA ROW moved for leave to introduce a bill called the "Mysore Newspapers Bill" to provide for the efficient control of the publication of newspapers and other printed works containing public news, and in doing so said,—

The Government of His Highness the Maharaja have had under consideration the question of placing the publication of newspapers in Mysore under better control, and of providing more effective means than are available under the existing law for dealing with that section of the public Press in Mysore which has for some time past been creating considerable mischief by misrepresenting the actions of the Government and attributing unworthy motives to it, and by indulging in remarks calculated to promote racial hatred, and in objectionable criticisms of the British Government in its relations with its own subjects as well as with the Native States. His Highness' Government view with extreme disapproval the attempts made by organs published in the State to mislead and prejudice the people of Mysore against the Paramount Power.

Action of the kind contemplated is all the more necessary in view of the pernicious effects this class of writing is calculated to have on the minds of ignorant and uninformed persons generally and of students and young people in particular, by undermining the feelings of reverence associated with His Highness personally and by destroying all respect for authority. It would be a grave error to underestimate the degree and the extent of these evil effects, since newspapers are in these days no longer limited in their circulation to the better educated classes who are in a position to discount misstatements. On the contrary, owing to the policy of Government in promoting elementary education among all classes, every section of the community, rural as well as urban, is now exposed to the influence of the Press, whether for good or for evil; and, consequently, a new responsibility is imposed upon the Government to protect the ignorantly credulous from evil influences which it is within their power to control.

The language adopted by some of the newspapers in question would imply that His Highness is not responsible for the actions of his Government, that he is dissociated from his Government and that he does not concern himself personally with the administration of the State. It is necessary once again to affirm in the clearest manner that His Highness is personally and solely responsible for the good government of the country and that while all fair, honest and bona fide criticism of his administration is welcomed, comments cannot be permitted in the public Press which pass the bounds of such criticism, or tend to bring his administration into contempt, or misrepresent the motives and actions of his advisers and officers.

The legislation we propose to adopt is not a new idea. Attempts have been made by the Government in the past to deal with the growing evil. A perusal of the excerpts from the newspapers published in the State during the past six months will show to you how demoralising in its effects is the literature purveyed by these newspapers. When the law gives the necessary powers for controlling the possession and use of arms, explosives, poisons and other dangerous substances, for preventing the spread of contagious diseases and prohibiting acts which are likely to endanger the public safety, it is certainly an anomaly that the Government should be powerless to arrest the dissemination of the far more dangerous and hurtful moral poison which journals of the type under notice instil into the public mind week after week. The common people are not sufficiently educated to properly discount the utterances of journals of this character. To them, everything which appears in print has the authority of matter published in the Government Gazette. In fact to the people in the country side every printed sheet in a gazette. You may have heard of patent medicines advertised in the vernacular newspapers being eagerly sought after and readily purchased because they had been published in what they call "the Gazette." It is notorious that when in the beginning of last year, certain local newspapers gave currency to false stories about the intended assumption of the Kolar and Bangalore Districts by the British Government, every word of it was believed as true, even in remote corners of the State. Considering the relations existing between the Ruler of a Native State and the Paramount Power, the Government of His Highness cannot neglect the responsibility which lies upon them to prevent the loyalty of his subjects to the Paramount Power from being undermined in the manner which the British Government might well resent, by reckless and mendacious statements of the character described. In Mysore in particular, these carping and ill-natured criticisms of the Paramount Power are singularly inappropriate and highly unbecoming in that the State has from the beginning of its constitution been the recipient of special consideration from the Paramount Power and the object of its continued solicitude. There is also the less justification in Mysore for misstatements and misrepresentations of the kind, as the Government has at all times been ready to place at the disposal of the Press and of the public such information regarding its actions and intentions as can be published without detriment to public interests. With this view a Press Room has been opened and the Proceedings of Government intended for publication are placed on the table. The meetings of the Representative Assembly also afford to the members of the Assembly the opportunity to elicit information on matters of public interest first-hand from the Government; the meetings are open to the public and the subjects brought forward by the members are discussed in public. Nor, if other practical means can be suggested for affording further facilities to the public for obtaining early and correct information on public matters, will the Government be backward in adopting them.

There is danger to the State also from another class of criticisms which we frequently meet with in these excerpts. The newspapers evidently think that by systematically vilifying His Highness' Government and his officers, they are doing nothing to impair his position as the Ruler of the State. It cannot be too frequently or too emphatically impressed on the newspapers that in spite of all the Councils and assemblies and administrative organizations, the basis on which Government rests is autocratic in its nature, since all power and responsibility are vested in His Highness the Maharaja, who is personally and solely responsible for the good government of the country. The administrative arrangements made both at the Rendition and at the Installation of His Highness the present Maharaja may have to some extent obscured the real nature of the kind of rule under which the State is administered; and possibly these and the fact of Mysore having been under the administration of the British Government for 50 years before the Rendition may have led to doubts being entertained as to the power of the Government to adopt laws for the regulation of the public Press at variance with those prevailing in British India. But from the description I have given of the nature of the rule under which Mysore is governed you will understand that His Highness the Maharaja has absolute power to regulate the public Press. I may refer in this connection to the action taken in the year 1894 in the Desabhimani case, and to the warning publicly conveyed in the order passed on the Suryodaya incident of last year, from which it is clear that, in legislating on the subject, the Government are not creating any new punitive power more formidable than that which is already inherent in His Highness' sovereign prerogative. Such being His Highness' undoubted powers it might be argued that it would be sufficient if similar executive action were taken in the case of any newspaper that actually offended. But on mature consideration, His Highness has arrived at the conclusion that in the interests of the newspaper Press itself, and in order to avoid as far as possible the necessity for employing the severe disciplinary measures which constitute the ultimate remedy in cases of extreme misconduct, it is advisable to introduce the present general measure which, while not imposing any harassing restriction on the legitimate liberty of the Press, will serve to remind the editors and publishers of newspapers of the obligations attaching to their responsible calling and of the penalty which will follow violation of the same.

The provisions of the new law which we propose to introduce are very simple and it is unnecessary to comment on them at any great length. Section 2 provides that no newspaper shall be published without the written permission of Government.

If any person contravenes this provision, section 4 empowers Government to require him to leave Mysore within seven days and to prohibit him from re-entering the State without permission and also, if necessary, to declare the Press and all its plant to be confiscated. Failure to leave the State or re-entry without permission will, under section 5, entail the forcible expulsion of the offender. In order to provide for the contingency of contumacious disobedience on the part of a suppressed newspaper, sections 6 and 7 provide for the exclusion from Mysore Territory of a Mysore paper which, after being prohibited under the Regulation from publication in the State, removes itself to British India and from there continues to circulate the newspaper in Mysore, and also for the exclusion from Mysore of any paper, e.g., the Yugantar which has been prohibited in British India. If any such prohibited newspaper is circulated in Mysore, section 7 provides that the District Magistrate may declare all copies of such newspaper, wherever found, forfeited to Government and take steps to seize all such copies, and that the Government may deal with the offender in the same manner as if he had printed or published a newspaper without permission, by requiring him to leave Mysore and prohibiting him from re-entering the State. I must not omit to refer also to section 3 of the Regulation which provides that any permission given under section 2 may at any time be withdrawn by the Government. This is perhaps the most important provision of the bill, but I may take this opportunity to give the assurance that in undertaking the present legislation, no change of policy is intended and that the Government do not mean to interfere with mere criticisms of the administration. To quote from the order passed in the Suryodaya case, "His Highness' Government cannot accentuate too strongly the fact that it is not to any criticism of His Highness' administration that they take exception. Criticism when well-informed they are prepared to welcome heartily; and when it is ill-informed and even when it appears to be spiteful, they are ready to accord it the fullest toleration. They draw the line, however, at the dissemination of absolute untruths which are calculated to excite apprehension among His Highness' subjects as to the good faith of the British Government and which reflect injuriously no less upon the person than upon the administration of His Highness the Maharaja."

The present Bill is almost entirely a reproduction, with the necessary variations to adapt it to Mysore, of the British enactment now in operation in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore; the only addition that is made is with reference to forfeiture of the printing press. It is obvious that an enactment of this kind, passed with a view to enable the Political Agent to deport blackmailers who may take shelter in tracts situated within Native Territory, but administered by the Political Agent, presupposes the power on the part of the Native State to deport such blackmailers and disseminators of dangerous falsehoods from its own territories.

I may also be permitted to say that because a law of this kind is proposed to be brought on the Statute Book, it does not follow that it will be put into force in regard to all or any of the newspapers published in the State. Judging from the analogy of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore where the enactment is not known to have been enforced even in a single instance during the 17 years it has been in operation, I should imagine that no occasion will arise for enforcing the proposed Regulation in Mysore. But the necessity for a Regulation like this is imperative. If the various evils to which reference has been made in the Statement of Objects and Reasons are to be effectually remedied, if the weakening of His Highness' authority by persistent misrepresentation of his Government is to be prevented, if the dissemination of untruths about the Paramount Power is to be put a stop to, if the attempts to promote racial hatred are to be checked, and above all if the rising generation is to be protected from a demoralization which, under present conditions, is facilitated by that very spread of education which it is the duty of the State to encourage, and which, by the recent action of the State in making vernacular education in all classes of primary schools completely free, will reach all sections and grades of the population, thus imposing an added responsibility on the State, we must not hesitate to adopt a law of the kind which is the only effective means of keeping editors and publishers of newspapers in mind of their duty to society and of the limitations under which a business having so important a bearing upon the well-being of society can be conducted.

MR. SYED AMIR HASSAN in seconding the motion said,—Sir, it is my humble opinion that the introduction of a Regulation like the one now under consideration is very necessary in Mysore. I have often observed the mischief created by misrepresenting the actions of Government and publishing scurrilous articles against public servants of all ranks. Most of these papers being very cheap and sensational are freely subscribed for by village officers and hobli school masters throughout the State who take a delight in reading out those articles to the villagers with running comments of their own, which tend to create hatred towards Government and its officers and to lower the estimation in which Government and its officers are held.

I can say from my own experience that, irrespective of the other mischief done, the prestige of the public authorities has suffered much during the last 25 or 30 years as the result of such irresponsible journalism and I should therefore think that on this as well as on other grounds it is high time the source of evil was checked.

For these reasons I beg to cordially support the measure now introduced.

The motion was put and carried.

MR. T. ANANDA RAO moved that the rules of business be suspended to permit of the Bill being taken into consideration immediately and passed.

The SECRETARY read the Bill for the information of the Council.

MR. RANGIENGAR:—Mr. President,—I deplore the circumstances which have necessitated the introduction of the Bill. Around us in parts of British India events are happening which augur ill to the country. The beneficent work of a century of steady, patient and disinterested toil, with all its assured progressive tendencies is being undone by mad impulses which are suicidal, inhuman and un-Aryan.

India is essentially a country in which the virtues of loyalty, respect for authority, obedience to law and abhorrence of every species of crime and violence are not needed to be taught and acquired, but are innate and instinctive. The vast majority of the people are staunch on the side of law and order and view with detestation the recent outrages and acts of lawlessness perpetrated by insane mobs or imbecile individuals. A section of the Press in India oblivious of its supreme responsibility has unfortunately chosen to disseminate the most pernicious ideas. The paramount Government, whose first duty is to preserve peace and order, was therefore constrained to have recourse to repressive measures for counteracting and eradicating the forces that make for violence, disorder and anarchy.

In Mysore the people happily remain firm in their loyalty to their Ruler and to the supreme Government. His Highness the Maharaja not long ago gave public and authoritative expression to his own and his people's liveliest feelings of friendship and gratitude to the British Government. His Highness' subjects look upon his word as law and render cheerful and implicit obedience. And yet, I regretfully feel bound to admit, after reading the excerpts alluded to by Mr. Ananda Rao, the correctness and cogency of the reasons urged in support of the Bill. The learning, the zeal and the ingenuity displayed by the Press are worthy of better purposes than those to which they have been applied. Liberty of the Press within the limits set by law and morality, is productive of incalculable good. But when it transgresses those limits, it degenerates into license and wields enormous power for mischief and evil. Without therefore questioning the propriety of remedying an existing and growing evil, at one time it occurred to me that recourse to legislation was unnecessary because His Highness the Maharaja has ample inherent power to take such steps as he may deem proper for dealing with the newspapers conducted in a spirit of malicious hostility to the best interests of the State. But I am now satisfied that by bringing the measure before the Council, certain distinct advantages are derivable such as demonstrating the confidence of Government in the justness and appropriateness of the Bill, the willingness of Government to subject its provisions to public discussion in Council and the esteem in which the Council itself is held. If the Bill is passed by the Council and eventually becomes law, it will go on the Statute Book of Mysore with all the moral support which conformity to established methods never fails to secure. Sir, I heartily approve of the principle of the Bill.

MR. NAGAPPA :—Sir, I regret the force of circumstances which necessitated the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore to introduce this measure.

I feel that I shall not be justified in recording a silent vote upon this Bill, without expressing my reasons. With the spread of primary education among all classes due to the establishment by the Government, of village and hobli schools, where elementary education was given almost free—now made completely free—grew the desire to read newspapers. The increasing activity in all walks of life in our State during the last quarter of a century contributed not a little to the demand for news of all sorts. Not only are many more papers published now than even a few years ago, but the number of copies of individual papers has increased also, especially in the case of Vernacular papers. It is but a truism to say that the Press in Mysore, as it is in British India, has greater influence now than ever. As a member of the agricultural community which forms the bulk of the population of the State, and as a representative of the Bar, I have had great opportunities of coming in contact with the people and to know exactly the working of their mind. We all know that national aspirations in them are nascent and that they have been influenced to a great extent by what appears in the public Press. I was more than astonished to find in many instances some persons, who have received some education, namely, those who are able only to read and write their mother-tongue, blindly believing some of the misstatements appearing in Vernacular papers and arguing important questions both of State and Imperial politics, upon the incorrect data furnished to them by some of the newspapers. They are, as a rule, so credulous and uninformed as not to discount misstatements in newspapers and often mistake them for authoritative statements published in a Gazette. It is my sad experience to find that the Press in general, and in particular the Vernacular Press in Mysore, has not exercised a healthy influence over the credulous and uninformed great mass of the people of the State and over the impressionable and immature minds of the youth.

The leading journals of the Western countries and especially in Great Britain wield considerable influence in everyday life and express popular opinion more directly than Parliament itself. This considerable influence is mainly due to the fact that these organs are owned and edited by persons whose enterprise, insight and judgment is of a very high order, who take a personal interest in journalism and have a full sense of their responsibilities in relation both to the guidance of public opinion and to the position of the journalistic profession.

I hope I shall not be mistaken when I say that the Press in general, and in particular the Vernacular Press, in Mysore, is by no means perfect. It is also my sad experience to find that some of the newspapers in the State are not conducted by the proprietors, managers or editors, with a full sense of their responsibilities in relation both to the guidance of public opinion and to the position of the journalistic profession. I hold very strong views regarding the mischief that is caused and is ever likely to be caused by allowing unchecked the publication of such newspapers. We have had sufficient experience by the recent horrible bomb outrages in the north, which were according to the recorded confessions of one of the prisoners committed by persons who had been incited by seditious writings in Yugantar. The excerpts we have seen from some of the newspapers published in the State, only confirm my sad experience in respect of the evil influence of some of these newspapers. Judging from the great opportunities afforded by the State to ever place at the disposal of the Press correct and first-hand information on matters of public interest, and the failure of some of the editors to avail themselves of this opportunity in spite of the invitation to do so, it is evident that the proprietors, managers or editors, who have published these excerpts have not realized their high sense of responsibility to the public and to their own profession.

It is the duty of every right-thinking and patriotic person to help the development of the embryo National aspirations which are just beginning to shape themselves and to direct all the forces that are working towards its realisation to right channels by checking effectively the evil influences of the seditious writer and preacher.

The principle of the Bill is to vest in Government the general control of the Press in Mysore so that it may effectively deal with such of the newspapers as disseminate seditious matter and have degenerated from liberty into unrestricted license. The main provisions of this Bill are adopted from the Regulation in force from 1891 in all the territories beyond British India, administered by the Governor-General in Council, and there was never an occasion either to put an end to the publication of any newspaper or to muzzle the freedom of the Press.

By bringing this Bill on the Statute Book, it serves as a constant reminder to any person engaged in the noble profession of journalism of his high sense of responsibility to the public, and to the high traditions of his profession; and that any dereliction of his duties will render him liable not only to the censure of the public, but also to the penalty which this law imposes. With this reminder constantly before him, he is bound to preserve the high traditions of the profession which wields considerable influence in everyday life.

Believing as I do that this Bill aims at checking the publication of such of the newspapers as preach sedition openly and thus spread anarchism in the country and are a common curse to society and to constituted authority, I heartily vote for the passing of this measure.

MR. BHABHA :—Sir,—If I may be permitted to speak a few words on the subject under consideration, I would lay special stress on two points relating to the ways in which badly conducted papers have for many years past done serious harm to the administrative work of Government, and to the character of the growing youth of the country.

Irresponsible and scurrilous writers have made it their business systematically to distort out of shape and recognition the public acts of high officers by putting the most ingenious constructions upon them, and to attribute to them motives of all kinds in the most unfair and uncharitable manner when the officers have merely been doing their duty to the State and to the public. They invent from a diseased and perverted imagination circumstances which have no foundation in fact, merely for the purpose of bringing authority into contempt or satisfying a private grudge against those officers for whom they have conceived a dislike. This vilification of the character and acts of public men which some journalists have systematically practised has tended to weaken their authority and the discipline of their departments. Even when the means of ascertaining the actual facts are within easy reach, they do not make the least attempt to avail themselves of them, but delight in bringing all authority into contempt by perverting and misrepresenting facts. They take a grim pleasure in encouraging false complaints and insubordination, and destroying the loyalty and good feeling of subordinate officials. The credulous and ignorant public who have great faith in all that appears in print are taught to look upon Government Officers as their natural enemies, and not as men who are honestly doing their duty by the public and trying to promote their interests and welfare. In administrative work where the balance has to be held evenly between conflicting interests and claims, the decisions of higher authorities must cause dissatisfaction to some. And if every one who is dissatisfied is allowed freely to magnify and air petty grievances in the press, it can easily be understood how the work of administration is hampered and rendered unnecessarily difficult and how discipline is destroyed.

There are, however, to my mind far more disastrous effects produced by this kind of scurrilous journalism on the minds of the growing youth of the country. Youth is a time of strong impulses, quick imagination and impracticable ideals. When undeveloped minds and unformed characters are influenced day after day by the venomous outpourings of diseased intellects, it can be seen how the feelings of young men can be easily aroused against people in authority, how their generous impulses can be stifled, and how false notions of misguided patriotism can be implanted in their minds which easily lead them to rash and unrestrained actions. When, however, young men who should scrupulously abstain from all spurious patriotism and mischievous agitations have the misfortune to have cheap papers near at hand to misguide them the evil effects on their character are bound to be extremely disastrou

It is the cheap local prints ready to hand that are most dangerous to the morals and character of youth. It is these papers that are usually conducted without regard to principles of fairness or a trace of liberality of views. The seeds planted by such journals in early youth fructify later in life and are apt to create a class of citizens who are disloyal and discontented. Happily the Government of His Highness the Maharaja are alive to this danger and are taking effective measures to avert a great danger to the people of the country.

The important law which is about to be passed will it is hoped rid the State of an infamous press and its disastrous effects on the minds of boys at school as well as the ignorant public. The legislation undertaken to-day has not come a day too soon. Whatever enthusiasts who preach the inviolable freedom of the Press may say to the contrary, I feel perfectly convinced that in the present state of India it is absolutely necessary in the interests of good Government and the education of the rising generation to curb the unrestrained license of an irresponsible and scurrilous Press.

MR. V. N. NARASIMHIENGAR:—I have only to say a few words in order to supplement what has been stated already.

I have been a close student of the rise and the growth of the Native Press,—of the Indian Press, I should say—and my own inspirations and ideas of free journalism have been derived from the best traditions of the English Press. I remember what has been said by men like John Bright, Macaulay and other great writers and thinkers, and I should have under other circumstances viewed with suspicion any attempt, any measure, to curb the normal freedom of free journalism. But recent events have greatly disillusioned me. Instead of being a free Press, a certain section of our Indian Press has become an unlicensed Press, and journalism has been travestied by being prostituted for the purpose of blackmailing, for murdering the reputation of men rendering their honest services to the country, and also for violating the vicinity of the sacro-sanct Throne and its illustrious occupant. It has been my shame-faced experience of the last three years to have read articles at which I have not ceased to blush. In Mysore, especially, certain extracts have been shown to me in the course of this morning which fully justify the restrictions proposed to be imposed on the Press in Mysore.

I have been a student of the veranacular papers also, the vernacular papers which have been indulging in scurrilous writings, not only in Kannada but also in Tamil, in which things which ought not to be said by any level-headed man were said. I have been reading most of these papers and therefore I have no hesitation in saying that the time has come to put certain restrictions upon the unlicensed exercise of this sort of journalism. With its double-edged weapon it is capable of doing infinite good. As Mr. Bhabha has just now said, when it is ill-directed, it is capable of causing not only incalculable harm at present, but in the future also, by distorting the views of the rising generation.

With regard to the provisions of the Bill itself, it has been said that, like other breaches of law, the breaches of proper journalism ought to be inquired into and disposed of by judicial tribunals; if any person is found guilty he should be punished judicially, and so on. But I think the present measure rightly aims at treating this as a sort of political offence, and providing for the banishment of the offender out of the country. This sort of punishment is not unknown to the history of Mysore. Within the last generation, there have been offenders sent out of the limits of the country. Mysore should never be an asylum to the imbeciles and undesirables of other places.

Another thing is this: Who are the people who conduct these papers generally? There is a Sanskrit proverb, "Bhagnah krisher bhâgavato bhavanti," which means that people who fail in other walks of life become bhâgavatas. We have schoolmasters haunting the pial schools, who know very little themselves, pretending to teach others and the rising generation to boot. Taking the qualifications, literary and psychological, of some of these self-constituted teachers of public opinion—the editors—what wonder is there that the Indian Press is generally looked down upon?

I have also come across instances in which the conductors of such papers have tried to blackmail men highly placed, not only men occupying high positions but also those that command wealth. The Press has been very often prostituted for this base purpose.

Although I have been hesitating before, I now think that the time has arrived for such a measure, and I therefore heartily second it.

RAJAMANTRAPRAVINA MR. SRINIVASA IYENGAR :—Mr. President,—With your kind permission, I beg to say a few words in support of the measure now before the Council. The law as it stands at present does not enable Government to deal with newspapers which degenerate from liberty to license. The measure before us will not affect in any way, any properly and decently conducted journal or newspaper. It will only affect newspapers which, instead of vindicating their existence, systematically abuse their opportunities. Such a measure has been abundantly shown to be imperatively necessary. We have the assurance of the Government that the machinery of this law will not be put in motion except in very exceptional cases and when there is serious provocation; that is, in cases which present a most serious aspect. That being so, I have [illegible]esitation in saying that this is a salutary measure and ought to meet with the ap[illegible] all right-thinking men.

I accordingly support the [illegible]

THE DEWAN :—Gentlemen,—Befor[illegible]ll formally to the vote, I wish to say a few words on this measure. In the first [illegible]ce it is a source of sincere gratification to His Highness' Government that the Bill has received the support of both the official and the non-official members of this Council. In view of the growing evil of irresponsible journalism the Government of His Highness the Maharaja had at one stage thought of taking action against certain offending newspapers by issuing a summary order for their confiscation as was once done in 1894. But on further consideration, the Government decided that it would be better to take power under a legislative enactment to regulate the publication of newspapers. They felt sure that the abuse of the liberty of the Press had gone to such lengths and had become such a source of public danger that they might count on the support of all members of the Legislative Council, both official and non-official, in giving the Government the very necessary power that they proposed to take under the Regulation. His Highness' Government cannot but be pleased that their anticipations have been so completely fulfilled and it is particularly gratifying to them that the non-official members have not contented themselves with giving a silent vote but have recognized the necessity for legislation and cordially supported the principle of the measure. By so readily accepting the Bill, they have given proof of the confidence the public feel that the Government may safely be entrusted with the powers they have sought for. I may assure the Council and through them the general public that the Government of His Highness the Maharaja will on their part endeavour in acting under the Regulation to show that this confidence is not misplaced. In fact to persons who have watched the attitude of the Mysore Government towards the Press in Mysore, it must have been a wonder that in the face of persistent vilification and mischief-making the Government should not have long before this put into force the undoubted power they possess of summarily suppressing the papers concerned. Only the other day a well-informed Indian editor of an English weekly newspaper on the Bombay side, whose opinions rightly command the respect of Europeans and Indians alike, spoke of the freedom of the Press in India as a gift from the British Government and said that even the most advanced Native States did not possess it. He evidently was not aware that in Mysore there exists a Press which rejoices in the possession not only of freedom but of unbridled license. Far be it from me to condemn the whole of the newspapers published in this State, but unfortunately it is the fact that the local Press includes a certain number of organs which answer the description of a section of the Indian Press given in one of its recent issues by the Indian Nation newspaper. After referring to the characteristics of the more respectable newspapers in India, this is what the Indian Nation says of some Newspapers written in English or in the Vernacular :—

"But there is another portion of the Press, written in English or in a Vernacular, which is in the hands of imperfectly educated men and which can only hope to keep itself going by things sensational. The most sensational of all things in writing is piquant abuse. Therefore the stock-in-trade of some journalists comes to be abuse, either of the Government or of individuals. In abusing Government several of them are careful to avoid, somehow or other, being involved in a charge of sedition. Others have not that degree of prudence or effrontery. But all of this particular class of journalists give themselves the utmost freedom in abusing individuals that are disagreeable to them. Their motive is personal grudge, and their abuse is personal abuse. They indulge in statements most of which are lies. . . . . Their great satisfaction is that they can sit in judgment over all the world and can abuse men under the safe cover of an anonymous 'we'."

It might have been hoped that with time an improvement would have taken place in the tone of local journalism, but instead of appreciating the freedom which they have enjoyed, the newspapers in Mysore of the type I am referring to, emboldened by immunity, have embarked on a career of systematic vilification of Government and its officers and of poisoning the minds of the people with untruths and perversions of facts. Their recklessness and perversity have gone so far that they even decline to accept corrections of misstatements when offered by the Government. This is a fact that I can vouch for from personal knowledge, and I may say also that the editor of one of these newspapers [illegible]—in a manner anything but courteous—an invitation from the [illegible] see him personally with a view to the editor being furnish[illegible]ation.

This spirit of lawlessness is [illegible] responsible Government can countenance. What these newspapers [illegible] appear to claim is absolute freedom from all restraint. Such is the terror inspired by them that Government officials both at head-quarters and in the Districts will do anything to secure immunity from abuse in the papers or to be in the good graces of the editors. The different professions have their own customary codes which guide and regulate the actions of those that follow them. But journalism is still foreign to the genius of India, and in the hands of half-educated and undisciplined men, it may prove dangerous to society as is actually happening before our eyes. I daresay you have all seen the excerpts from the newspapers which have been placed at your disposal, and this will have given you a pretty clear idea of the extent and character of the mischief that is being worked. In the hands of the journalists of the type we have in view, a kind of spurious public opinion is being manufactured and this is gradually displacing the genuine article, especially out in the Districts. The rural population know that what they read in the newspapers has no correspondence with the reality they are familiar with, as has been explained by Mr. Syed Amir Hassan and Mr. Nagappa, but constant iteration of untrue statements, constant coloured presentation of facts, and constant imputation of unworthy motives to the representatives of Government from day to day and week to week have their own effect on the rural mind. I have seen members of the Representative Assembly who come from the remoter Districts feel startled to find, when face to face with the officers of the central Government and with correct information about the measures of Government and their intentions, how badly they had been misled by the newspapers. But this disillusionment is of short duration, and when they go back to their Districts they again come under the spell of the newspapers. It is on newspapers of this class that the legislation we are going to adopt is intended to have a deterrent effect.

You may ask, Why not prosecute these papers for libel or sedition? The answer is that this would only give the papers concerned an undesirable notoriety, and there would be no guarantee that the offence would not be repeated. The evils which the Bill is intended to meet are mainly two—first the abuse of His Highness' Government in a manner calculated to undermine the loyalty of the people to, and their respect for, His Highness, and secondly, attacks on the British Government calculated to mislead and prejudice the people of Mysore against the Paramount Power. Both these are manifestations of the same new spirit, namely a spirit of impatience against all authority. To prevent the spread of such a spirit is as much a matter of importance to a Native State as it is to the British Government. Both are bound by a solidarity of interests. So long as the newspapers confined their attacks to the officers of His Highness' Government, the conduct of these newspapers was treated as almost a matter of indifference, but when it was found that the tendency to malign Government and undermine His Highness' authority was spreading, and that the newspapers began to indulge in hostile criticism of the acts of the British Government as well, it was felt that the evil had assumed serious proportions which could no longer be disregarded. In view of what is going on in other parts of India under direct British Rule we should be wanting in our duty to the Paramount Power if we added to its troubles by allowing the newspapers published in the State to indulge in misrepresenting its actions and its motives. It may be urged that these newspapers are not really hostile to Government and only want Swadeshism and amelioration of the condition of the people, and considering that Mysore enjoys practically Swaraj under the protection and with the sympathy of the British Government, it is indeed difficult to believe that they are really animated by a feeling of active hostility either to the Mysore Government or to the Paramount Power, and in writing as they do about the movements going on in British India, I prefer to think that they are only imitating the journalists outside Mysore. How else are we to explain what was told me the other day that some schoolboys led by their masters held a Sivaji celebration in the Mysore City? What can this be but pure mimicry without giving a thought as to the meaning of the act or its propriety in a Native State ruled by their own Maharaja, who is representative of an ancient dynasty which is justly held in the greatest reverence and affection? I have again been told that at a meeting in Mysore some months ago, a gentleman connected with one of the schools had given expression to the idea that people would be justified in getting rid by violent means of rulers and Government officials who tyrannised over the people. I do not remember in what connection or in regard to whom this amiable sentiment was uttered, but you can understand how utterly out of place it was in Mysore, the Ruler of which had only recently remitted taxation to the extent of some lakhs of rupees, had given the people the benefits of free education, had organised a costly department of Sanitation for the State, had taken the first steps towards the separation of Judicial from Executive functions, and effected many other improvements for which people elsewhere have been agitating all these years.

But whether we treat actions like these as the outcome of open hostility or meaningless mimicry, their effect upon the young and ignorant is the same, and there can be no question that it is the imperative duty of the Government to see that this spirit of disloyalty does not spread. The best way of attaining this end is to warn the Press betimes of the dangerous consequences of overstepping the bounds of fair and honest criticism. It does not follow because we have a law like this that it will be necessary to enforce its punitive sections. The presence of an enactment of this kind on the Statute Book will, I consider, have also an educative effect. It will, as observed by Mr. Nagappa, serve to remind journalists of the high nature of their calling and of their responsibilities towards the constituted Government and towards society. While it will have a restraining influence upon newspapers given to manufacturing public opinion, genuine public opinion will be left untouched by it. His Highness' Government have always acted in the full light of public opinion. They have consistently encouraged the expression of genuine public opinion. This has been their policy in the past, and I may assure you that this will be their policy in the future.

The motion was put to the Council and carried unanimously.

The Council then adjourned.

President.

Description of the boundaries for Kolar Municipality.

North.—The boundary line starts near the end of Survey No. 28 of Kolar from the existing Municipal boundary stone on the Kolar-Sompur road and crossing the Kolar-Sompur road, follows the western boundaries of Survey Nos. 30-31 and 32 of Kolar and then turning to the east and passing along the northern boundary of Survey No. 32 of Kolar, comes to the north-eastern boundary stone of Survey No. 32, where will be located a Municipal boundary stone. The boundary line then runs straight across the bed of the Kodikannur tank to the Municipal boundary stone on the bund of the tank in the Kolar-Srinivaspur road and thence turning in a south-easterly direction follows the course of the sluice channel in Survey Nos. 82-85-86-73-72-71-70-63-62-59-57-56 of Kodikannur village and then joining the discharge channel of the Kodikannur tank at the end of Survey No. 58 of Kodikannur village, follows the course of this discharge channel and uniting with the discharge channel of Kolar-Amanikere tank proceeds in a north-easterly direction up to the point where the sluice channel from Kolar-Amanikere tank and the combined discharge channel touch near the northern extremity of Survey No. 64 of Kolar village. Here there will be a Municipal boundary stone.

East.—The boundary line begins at the last mentioned Municipal boundary stone and follows the course of the sluice channel as far as Survey No. 84 of Kolar village and then entering the Kolar-Amanikere village and proceeding along the same sluice channel reaches Kolar-Amanikere tank bund on which there will be a Municipal boundary stone near the registered number stone of the tank from the last mentioned boundary stone, the boundary line passes in a straight line in a south-westerly direction to the south-eastern boundary (pahani) stone of Survey No. 153. There will be a Municipal boundary stone in the bed of the tank on the straight line. There will also be a Municipal bonndary stone at the south-eastern boundary stone of Survey No. 153. The boundary line passes from the latter in a straight line to the south-western boundary stone of Survey No. 177, where there will be a Municipal boundary stone.

South.—From this point the boundary line crosses straight to the south-eastern boundary of Survey No. 179 of Kolar. Here will be located a Municipal boundary stone on the road. From the Municipal boundary stone the line proceeds to the north of a natural channel on the southern boundary line of Survey Nos. 179, 189, 188, 187, 192, 193 and 194 of Kolar, meets the cart-track leading from Chamanahalli to Kolar at the South-western boundary of Survey No. 194 of Kolar and thence crossing the cart-track meets the pahani stone between two bonds on the south-east of Survey No. 214 of Kolar and thence proceeding west and then north on the southern and western boundaries respectively of the same survey number, meets the southern boundary line of Survey No. 215 of Kolar and thence proceeding in a north-westerly direction on the boundary line of the said survey number reaches the point where the village of Chamanahalli-Harohalli and Kolar meet and thence crossing the cart-track leading from Bagali to Kolar reaches the south-eastern pahani stone of Survey No 216 of Kolar village. Near this point there is a Municipal boundary stone.

From this Municipal boundary stone the boundary line passes west on the southern boundary of Survey No. 216 of Kolar and thence following the western boundary of Survey No. 216 as far as the cart-track, meets the south-eastern pahani stone of Survey No. 86 of Harohalli village, passes west on the southern boundary of the same Survey No. 86, until it meets the eastern boundary of Survey No. 87 and thence turning southwards on the eastern boundary of Survey No. 87 of Harohalli comes to the south-eastern point of the said survey number and then skirting the southern boundary of Survey Nos. 87 and 81 of Harohalli [illegible] to south-western point of the said Survey No. 81 and thence proceeds north on the we[illegible] boundary of Survey No. 81 until the southern boundary line of Survey No. 2 of Sultantippasandra. Thence proceeding west on the southern boundary of the same Survey No. 2 the boundary line comes to the south-western point of Survey No. 2 and thence proceeding north on the western boundary of the same survey number joins the Madras-Cannanore road at the north-west point of Survey No. 2 and crosses the road from there straight to the pahani stone towards the north-east in Survey No. 7 of Sultantippasandra on the other side of the road. Here a Municipal boundary stone will be located.

West.—From the last boundary stone the boundary line turns in a north-easterly direction to the junction point of the cart-track in Survey No. 7 of Sultantippasandra with the Madras-Cannanore road and from thence in a north-westerly direction the line follows the cart-track in Sultantippasandra and Keelkota through Survey Nos. 7-66-63-62 and 60 of Sultantippasandra and Survey No. 10 of Keelkota and through the bed of Keelkota tank in a straight line meets the Keelkota tank bund road where there will be a Municipal boundary stone; from the last mentioned boundary stone the boundary line passes along the tank bund road to the south-western point of Survey No. 111 of Keelkota and thence proceeding north in the western boundary of Survey No. 111 of Keelkota joins a natural channel and proceeds along the outer border of it to the northern most pahani stone of Survey No. 104, thence crosses directly to the point where a foot-path emerges from Survey No. 82 into the halla and thence passing along the eastern boundary of Survey No. 82 and reaching the eastern-most point of Survey No. 82 crosses to the southernmost point of Survey No. 83 and thence passing on the south-western boundary of Survey No. 83 meets the frontier of Sangondahalli and Keelkota at the south-western extremity of Survey No. 83 and thence proceeding along the joint frontier of the two villages named and leaving Survey Nos. 83-84 and 85 on the right, reaches the Kolar-Sompur road. The boundary line then runs in a south-easterly direction and meets the Municipal boundary stone at the north-western extremity of Survey No. 28 of Kolar from which the boundary line first started. Within the Municipal limits therefore lie the lands of the 6 villages, viz., Kolar-Kodikannur, Kolar-Amanikere, Harohalli, Sultantippasandra and Keelkota.

No. 2344—Edn. 303-07-3, dated 5th September 1908.

The question of raising the pay of Taluk and Village School Masters to a minimum of Rs. 10 is one that has been engaging the attention of His Highness' Government for some time past. It has been felt by them that good work could not be expected from School Masters receiving less than a living wage,—a wage less in many cases than that paid to menial servants.

2. As a first step in the direction of improving the position of these School Masters it was directed in Government Proceedings No. 2715-6—Ed. 259-06-4, dated the 23rd September 1907, that the pay of all such teachers as were getting less than Rs. 10 be raised by one rupee each with effect from the 1st October 1907, thus raising the minimum pay of teachers from Rs. 7 to Rs. 8. The extra cost involved by this arrangement was Rs. 23,832 (State Funds Rs. 16,236 and Village School Funds, Rs. 7,596).

3. The Government are now in a position on a consideration of ways and means to give full effect to the reform in question by raising the minimum pay of Taluk and Village School Masters once for all to Rs. 10. This will accordingly be done with effect from 1st July 1908. This measure entails an additional cost of Rs. 46,968 per annum the whole of which, in consideration of the low state of the Village School Fund, has been ordered to be borne by the General Revenues this year.

GENERAL AND REVENUE.

No. 2, dated Camp, Mysore, 28th September 1908.

The following Order of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, directing the introduction of religious and moral instruction in all Government Schools and Colleges in the State, with effect from the 1st November 1908, is published for general information:—

No. 1, dated Camp, Mysore, 28th September 1908

The Government of His Highness the Maharaja have had under consideration for some time past the question of imparting religious and moral instruction to pupils in schools and colleges in the State. The tendency of the present system of education, which especially in Government institutions is purely secular in character, is to devote exclusive attention to the training of the intellect, and to leave the character of the pupils to be formed and moulded, in an indirect manner, by the personal example of the teachers, the literary teaching included in the school curriculum, and the nature of the discipline maintained in the institution. The result, as judged from experience and observation, cannot be considered to be altogether satisfactory. That this indirect influence of schools has failed in many cases to form the character of the pupils and make them useful citizens has, as is well pointed out by the Inspector-General of Education, "become only too apparent of late in India. For various reasons the homes of the pupils have ceased to impart religious and moral instruction, and the influence of religious teachers and places of public worship has almost disappeared. Irreverence of all kinds and disrespect for authority have been on the increase. Modesty, self-restraint and good sense are largely at a discount, while presumption, vanity and unrestrained aggressiveness appear to be increasing." Under these circumstances His Highness' Government are convinced that one of the readiest and most effective means of forming and strengthening the character of youth is to be found in imparting religious and moral instruction to them as a systematic part of the school curriculum.

2. There were misgivings at one time as to how, with such a diversity of sects even among the Hindus themselves, a satisfactory system of religious instruction could be devised. But the report of the Headmaster of the Tumkur High School, who was deputed to study the system obtaining in various schools in the Madras Presidency, shows that in practical working the imparting of religious and moral instruction has not been attended with any difficulty. In the schools under Hindu management, referred to in that report, not only do the different sects among the Hindus attend the classes, but even Muhammadan and Christian boys have no objection to do so; on the contrary, they often join the classes of their own accord.

3. The Government recognize that any scheme for the imparting of religious and moral instruction must at this stage be in the nature of an experiment, and that the results may possibly not be all that could be desired. But they feel at the same time that, in the interests of the rising generation, the State can no longer afford to postpone action in the matter. It appears to them that the proposals submitted by the Inspector-General are framed on correct lines and would if adopted constitute a move in the right direction. They are accordingly pleased to sanction these proposals, and to direct that effect be given to them from the 1st November 1908.

4. As recommended by the Inspector-General, the time to be given to religious and moral instruction will be limited to five priods a week, the first thirty minutes after roll-call being devoted thereto. There will be a moral discourse on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and religious instruction on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The moral discourse will be common to pupils of all persuasions, and be based on a text taken from some religious, moral, historical, or literary book. In addition, there will be specific religious teaching from books like the Sanatana Dharma Advanced Text Book, the Koran and approved commentaries and essays on the Muhammadan religion, and the Bible. The curriculum suggested by the Inspector-General and the text-books recommended by him are approved for adoption in all Government institutions, to which alone the present scheme will be applied in the first instance, the question of extending the scheme to aided schools not under Government management being reserved for future consideration.

5. As Mysore is a Hindu State and the bulk of the population is Hindu, provision for imparting teaching in the Hindu religion will be made in all Government institutions (other than those intended purely for the education of particular classes of non-Hindus, as, for instance, Hindustani Schools). The classes will be open for Hindus of all denominations, but attendance will be optional in the case of other pupils. It will at the same time be laid down for the present that, when in any Government institution the number of Muhammadan or Christian pupils is not less than twenty, arrangements should be made as far as may be possible for imparting instruction to them in their respective religions. If, however, any private persons or bodies interested in either of these religions wish to make special arrangements at their own cost for teaching their respective religions in Government institutions where the number of pupils of such religions is below twenty, every facility should be given for this being done.

6. In the case of Government Schools intended purely for the education of particular classes of non-Hindus, provision will similarly be made by the Education Department for imparting instruction to the pupils in the tenets of their religion.

7. The Government consider that no additional establishment should be necessary to give effect to the new scheme, as the existing staff of teachers may be utilized for the purpose as far as possible; and as regards the cost of the text-books required, this will be met from the ordinary Education Department grant.

8. The Inspector-General is requested to issue such subsidiary instructions as may be necessary to give full effect to the orders of Government.

The Secretary reported that the Mysore Newspapers Regulation, III of 1908, received the assent of His Highness the Maharaja on the 8th day of August 1908.

Bill further to amend the City of Mysore Improvement Regulation, III of 1903.

MR. T. ANANDA RAO moved for leave to introduce the above bill, and in doing so said:—The object of the short amendment to the City of Mysore Improvement Regulation, III of 1903, is to vest in the Board of Trustees the powers exercised by the Mysore City Municipal Council under the new Mysore Municipal Regulation, VII of 1906, in regard to the drainage, conservancy and sanitation of the areas brought under the control of the Trust Board. Opportunity has also been taken to propose an amendment to Section 4 relating to the constitution of the Trust Board by which the Board will have 9 Trustees instead of 8. The Board thus constituted will include the Mysore City Health Officer and the Deputy Sanitary Commissioner in the place of the Civil Surgeon.

MR. K. P. PUTTANNA CHETTY seconded the motion.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

Bill to provide a law relating to Treasure-Trove in Mysore.

RAJAKARYAPRAVINA MR. A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR moved for leave to introduce the above bill, and in doing so said:—Under Rule 30 of the rules for the conduct of business of this Council, I rise to move for leave to introduce a bill to provide a law relating to Treasure-Trove in Mysore. The proposed bill and its statement of objects and reasons have been published with Government Notification No. J. 2709—Legis. 19 of 1906, dated 6th March 1907. The statement clearly explains the need for the legislative measure in question and the changes introduced in the existing rules and the Indian Treasure-Trove Act, VI of 1878, the provisions of which have been generally adopted. It is scarcely necessary for me to take up the time of the Council especially at this stage by going more fully into details, and I request accordingly that the bill may be allowed to be introduced.

MR. K. S. CHANDRASEKHARA AIYAR seconded the motion.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

Bill for the Regulation of the Possession and Sale of Poisons in Mysore.

MR. K. P. PUTTANNA CHETTY moved for leave to introduce the above bill, and in doing so said:—Mr. President,—The measure I am entrusted with, deals with the possession and sale of poisons within the State. The question of restricting, by legislation, the possession and sale of poisons has been under the consideration of Government ever since 1894. It was then suggested to Government that the Bombay Act, VIII of 1886, might be introduced into Bangalore. It was however understood that the Act did not efficiently serve the object which its framers had in view. Meanwhile, the Government of India had under consideration a proposal for an enactment on the subject for the whole of India. This Government deferred taking further action till the Government of India passed the Poisons Act. Now that the Poisons Act (I of 1904) has been enacted and rules have been framed under it by almost all the Local Governments in British India, it is thought desirable to introduce a similar measure in Mysore.

I need not explain to you in any detail the necessity for such a measure. The ease with which poisons can be procured and the dastardly purposes to which they can be, and have been, used make it necessary that Government should exercise, in the interests of the people, some general control over the possession and sale of poisons. In the absence of such a measure, it is possible for any one to get hold of any quantity of poisons for any purpose and to escape notice or detection. The object of the present measure is, therefore, to provide for such a general control. The scope of the bill is very limited. It is only a permissive measure, empowering Government to make rules for the objects specified therein. Its success will therefore depend upon the rules framed and upon the manner of enforcing them.

I shall now briefly advert to a few of the provisions of the bill. Clause 2 empowers Government to control the sale of poisons within Municipalities. Clause 3 authorizes the prohibition of the importation of white arsenic except under a license. This poison is particularized, because it is commonly used in criminal cases of poisoning and is also easily procurable. Further, by Clause 6 power is taken to apply the provisions relating to white arsenic to any other poison. Clause 10 affords protection for bona fide dealing with poison by professional men who have to employ them in the ordinary course of their business.

I must however refer to one point in some detail on which our bill departs from the British Indian Act. And that is with regard to the power vested in Government under Clause 10 (2) to make rules for the control of transactions by chemists and druggists and other professional men with regard to certain poisonous drugs to be specified by Government. Our recent experience has demonstrated the necessity for such a provision. I need not bring to your recollection the facts connected with the atrocious series of murders recently brought to light in Bangalore. How the miscreants used chloroform—primarily invented for the relief of pain—for effecting their nefarious objects and how easily they were able to obtain it, these are well known facts. It is indeed regrettable that such poisonous drugs, which may be used with fatal results, should be easily procurable from chemical shops, and it is, therefore, proposed to take power under the bill to provide that with regard to poisonous drugs to be specified by Government the medical practitioners and other professional people should maintain registers with full particulars and allow examination of the registers and the poisons exposed for sale.

I now move that leave be granted to introduce the bill.

Mr. M. Kantharaj Urs seconded the motion. The motion was put to the Council and carried.

Bill to amend the Mysore Registration Regulation, I of 1903.

Mr. T. Ananda Rao:—Sir,—I beg to move that the amendment of Section 88 of the Mysore Registration Regulation be taken up and read in Council. As already stated, it is for the purpose of exempting the Deputy Post Master-General of Madras from attending at Registration offices for the registration of documents to which he is a party. In British India, he is exempted from appearance just as all British Government Officers are exempted in British India and as all Mysore Government Officers are exempted in Mysore.

Mr. S. Narayana Rao seconded the motion.

The motion was put to the Council and carried. The bill was then finally considered in Council and was unanimously adopted by it.

The Village Tank Panchayet Bill.

Mr. K. P. Puttanna Chetty moved for the introduction and reading of the above bill, and in doing so said:—Sir, I beg to move that the Village Tank Panchayet Bill, which has been published in the Gazette of the 10th September, be read in Council. The object of the bill and the main principles involved in the measure are sufficiently clear from the statement of objects and reasons which has also been published, and it is hardly necessary for me to explain these at any great length.

To an agricultural country like Mysore, the importance of its irrigation works cannot be overrated; and, as might have been expected, the subject of tanks has engaged the attention of the Government for several decades past. There are in the State nearly 40,000 tanks, large and small, about 30,000 of which yield revenue to Government. Every valley and every drainage area has had a bund thrown across it for storing the drainage of the country, so much so that, as observed by a great engineering authority, it is extremely difficult to find a site suitable for a new tank. It was therefore recognised at a very early stage that little remained to be done by the Government in the matter of irrigation facilities beyond restoring and maintaining the old works.

To take up first the subject of maintenance of tanks, it was found that the majority of the tanks were in a state of the utmost neglect. This was due to the customary obligations of the raiyats to keep their tanks in order not being enforced. All that a raiyat need be called upon to do in the way of maintenance of tanks is to throw a basketful of earth here and there, to fill in the gullies on the slopes of the bunds, remove prickly pear and rank vegetation from the bunds, and such small items of work, timely attention to which would save the tank from falling into disrepair. It is impossible for any Government agency to attend to these details; and, as a result of not enforcing the raiyats' obligations, it was found that tanks were every day hopelessly getting into disrepair. The Government therefore found that it was time the customary obligations of the raiyats were enforced, and accordingly in the year 1873 they passed the Tank Maintenance Rules for enforcing these obligations. It is under these rules, as slightly modified by a Government Notification issued in December 1904, that the maintenance of tanks by the raiyats is at present regulated.

The rules of 1873 refer only to tanks which are already in a state of efficient repair or have been restored and brought to a standard of safety and formally handed over to the raiyats for upkeep. As regards tanks which had not been restored to a standard of safety, it was considered that raiyats could not reasonably be called upon to restore or repair works which had been neglected for a number of years. The question of the repair and restoration of these neglected tanks engaged the anxious consideration of the Government for years, but no definite steps were taken in the matter until 1887, when a distinction was drawn between tanks yielding a revenue of over Rs. 300, which were called major tanks, and those yielding a revenue of Rs. 300 and under, which were called minor tanks. Under this classification there are 2,388 major tanks and 26,682 minor tanks in the State. The restoration of the former was to be carried out by the Public Works Department, subject to the levy of contribution from the raiyats. We are not, however, concerned, in the bill before us, with the subject of the restoration of major tanks, and I shall not refer to it again. As regards the minor tanks which form the great bulk of the tanks in the State and which have aptly been described as "the life of the country," these were, under the scheme sanctioned in 1887, to be restored by the Government and the raiyats jointly, the Government undertaking to do the required stone and masonry work, whenever the raiyats carried out the earthwork. After restoration, the maintenance of these tanks was to be enforced under the Rules of 1873. This scheme known as the Minor Tanks Restoration Scheme sanctioned in 1887 is still in operation, and it is under it that minor tanks throughout the State are now being restored.

These, then, are the rules in force in the State in regard to the two matters dealt with in the bill before us, the restoration and repair of minor tanks and the maintenance of all restored tanks, major and minor, viz., the Minor Tank Restoration Scheme of 1887, in regard to the former and the Chief Commissioner's Rules of 1873, as amended in 1904, in regard to the latter. Let us consider what the results have been of the operation of these rules during the past several years.

Notwithstanding all the efforts made by Government for the proper preservation and restoration of these irrigation works, we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that a large number of them are still in complete ruin and that many of the restored tanks themselves have been allowed to again fall into disrepair. Under the Minor Tank Restoration Scheme, altogether 2,304 tanks have been repaired since the scheme was started, or on an average of 110 per year. At this rate of progress it will be more than two centuries before all the minor tanks in the State are repaired. And as regards maintenance of restored tanks it has been a frequent complaint that the village officers on whom the duty of enforcing the tank maintenance rules devolves have been slack in the performance of their duty, and that the higher Revenue officers have also been negligent in the matter. There have been many instances in which the raiyats neglected to do the necessary earthwork and the Public Works Department has had to undertake for a second time the restoration of such tanks to preserve them from complete ruin. Much has been done during the past few years to remedy this unsatisfactory state of affairs by the issue of orders insisting on the personal responsibility of Revenue officers to see to the proper maintenance of tanks.

While it is to be hoped that these measures will remedy matters to some extent, it appears to Government that something more is necessary before a radical improvement of the situation can be looked for. I do not say that the principle of the existing rules which insist on the responsibility of the raiyats for the maintenance of tanks once restored, requires re-consideration—I have already shown that it is impossible for any but the raiyats interested in the tanks to maintain them—or that any material alterations are necessary in the scheme under which the restoration of minor tanks is carried out by the Government and the raiyats jointly. In fact a Committee appointed by Government in the year 1903 to consider the whole question was of opinion that no material changes in these rules were necessary. The rules are good enough so far as they go, but there are two circumstances which militate against their efficient working. The first is the want of a spirit of co-operation among the raiyats and the second is the absence of sufficient inducements to make them take a real and personal interest in their tanks. Undue importance was at one time given to the responsibility of Government for the upkeep of the tanks, the raiyats' liability being altogether ignored, and when Government found that its costly agency could not possibly undertake the management of all the tanks in the State, the raiyat was called upon to take charge of the majority of the tanks. But the raiyat had by this time lost all traditions of combination for works of public utility, and it is easy to see that without such combination it is impossible that the rules relating either to the maintenance of restored tanks or to the repair and restoration of minor tanks, both of which require concerted action on the part of the raiyats, can be satisfactorily carried out. It is an every-day experience of Revenue officers that the maintenance works required to be done by raiyats to tanks are often entirely neglected by reason of the obstinacy or default of a few recalcitrant raiyats, often only one or two. Again it often happens that, when a tank is to be restored, the majority of the villagers agree to pay the contribution demanded or to do the necessary earthwork, but the proposal falls through on account of the obstructive attitude of an unwilling minority. The first thing therefore to be done, if the present unsatisfactory state of things is to be remedied, is to educate the raiyats to unite for works of common benefit.

The second defect in our system of tank management to which I have referred is the absence of sufficient inducements to make the raiyats take any interest in the proper upkeep of their tanks. The maintenance of tanks has hitherto been treated as a matter in which Government is solely concerned and for which Government agency is alone responsible, while the principal factor in the problem, namely, the raiyat owning lands under the tanks, has been more or less ignored. The raiyats' part has been to unwillingly and sullenly carry out, if he could not evade, what was demanded of him by the village officers and revenue officers. Nothing has been done to interest the raiyat in the tank or to secure his willing and intelligent help and co-operation in the matter of its restoration and maintenance. In addition to educating the raiyats to co-operate with one another in their communal affairs, it is therefore necessary that an effort should be made to create in them an interest in the maintenance of their tanks. And if this is to be done there should be no feeling of compulsion when the raiyats have to do any work to their tanks. They should be given a substantial voice in the measures necessary for the maintenance of the tanks. The powers to execute the necessary works should be given to them, instead of their being pressed and compelled to do those works; and the control over the funds that may be set apart for the purpose of repairing and maintaining tanks should also be transferred to them. They should be made to regard the tanks as their own and be induced to attend to their repairs and maintenance with the same readiness and interest as they would show in renewing the thatch to their houses or repairing the hedge of their gardens. In short, the raiyats' interest in the tanks can best be secured by allowing them a certain measure of self-government in respect of the tanks. It is with this view that it is proposed to constitute Village Panchayets for the control of tanks, composed of the Patel and Shanbhog of the village and three or more members elected by the raiyats from among themselves; and the object of the present bill is to authorise the constitution of such panchayets and to lay down their powers and duties. In giving over the control of tanks to the raiyats, their responsibilities and duties remain just the same as before. The bill does not relieve them of any of their existing obligations in regard to the maintenance, repair or restoration of tanks, nor does it impose any additional obligations on them. The bill only alters the agency by which these obligations are enforced. In place of the purely official agency now existing, the bill substitutes the agency of panchayets composed mostly of members elected by the raiyats themselves.

I should here like to remind the members of the Council of the fact that the constitution of Village Panchayets to deal with village tanks is not a new idea now started for the first time. On the contrary, there is strong evidence to show that village committees for the supervision and maintenance of tanks existed in South India from very early times. In the report of the Archæological Survey of British India for the year 1903-04, there is an interesting monograph from the pen of Mr. V. Venkayya about "Irrigation in Southern India in ancient times," in the course of which the writer makes some remarks about the committee for supervision of tanks which, he says, each village in the Tamil country seems to have had in ancient times, and which we may safely assume was to be found in the Kanarese country as well. "At Uttaramallur in the Chingleput District," says Mr. Venkayya, "there are two inscriptions belonging to the beginning of the 10th century, which furnish full details about the constitution of village assemblies and the mode of selection of members to them." . . . "We are there told that the village assembly consisted of several committees, of which the committee for supervision of tanks was one. This body consisted of six members who held office for 360 days and then retired. If any one who served on the committees was guilty of any offence, he was removed at once. The duties entrusted to these committees are nowhere clearly laid down. But those of the committee for the 'supervision of tanks' with which alone we are at present concerned, do not require any detailed explanation. It may be presumed that all endowments made in favour of tanks were entrusted to them and that they had to invest money endowments in the best possible way. We may suppose that they utilised them in reclaiming waste land and cultivating it, in order to pay the interest on the endowment from the produce. They had apparently to look after the cultivation of lands granted to tanks. The income from both these sources had to be applied to meet the charges of the annual or periodical removal of silt in tanks and for repairs so far, I suppose, as funds would permit. Fines to be credited to the tank fund were levied by them." . . . "The king does not appear to have had any direct control over the upkeep of tanks. He could of course enforce the obligations incurred by village assemblies as trustees of endowments made for tanks." It will be seen from this that in former times the control of tanks vested not in the Government but in the village community, and that this control was exercised in a well-organised and systematic manner, but the information that we now possess does not enable us to say how or when this ancient indigenous institution ceased to exist.

The question may be raised whether it is wise to hand over the numerous irrigation works in the State on which so much of the revenue of the State and the prosperity of the people depend, to panchayets of villagers. Under the existing rules, the Revenue officers can compel the raiyats by coercive processes to carry out the maintenance and repair of tanks. In spite of this power in the hands of the Revenue officers maintenance and repairs have been neglected. Will the raiyats show any more zeal in the matter when the enforcement of the rules is handed over from the Deputy Commissioner to their own panchayets and when the Deputy Commissioner can exercise coercion only on the application of the panchayets? This question has been asked and my answer to this is that the Government have every confidence that the proposed scheme will revive a communal spirit which will effect what any amount of coercion on the part of the Revenue officers has failed and must fail to achieve. But the Government fully recognize the fact that it is possible that they may be disappointed in their expectations; and, having regard to the enormous importance to the State and the people of the material interests dependent upon the upkeep of the tanks, they do not propose that the new scheme should be brought into force throughout the State at once. As explained in the statement of objects and reasons, the bill does not contemplate the constitution of panchayets compulsorily in places where the villagers do not wish to have them. The panchayets are to be formed only in villages where a majority of not less than two-thirds of the villagers wish to have them. And even where the majority of villagers decide to have panchayets, Clause 3 of the bill introduces a further limitation by laying down that panchayets are to be constituted only in places where the Government may consider it expedient to do so. The scheme will therefore be introduced only in villages where the Government may be satisfied that the conditions are favourable to its introduction. There should on the one hand be intelligent villagers who can co-operate for objects of common good, and on the other hand Amildars and Deputy Commissioners who are capable of working the scheme with zeal and sympathy. I fear that, with the disintegrating influences of modern civilisation, the factions existing in numerous villages, and the declining personal influence of the village officers and of the Amildars, it is only in a few villages that these conditions can, for some years at least, be found to exist. Far from there being therefore any danger of all or the majority of the tanks in the State being left entirely to the management of Village Panchayets who may or may not keep them in order, the problem which the Government will have to face when the bill is passed into law will be whether there are many places in which it could be successfully worked. And even in the few places where the panchayets may be constituted, clause 17 of the bill provides a remedy in the case of incompetency, default or abuse of powers on the part of panchayets by empowering Government to supersede the panchayets permanently or for a time. I may assure the Council that the working of the scheme will be most carefully watched by the Government and that they will not lose sight of the necessity to take careful stock of the position at short intervals in order to bring clause 17 into operation where necessary to prevent further deterioration of tanks which may have been neglected by panchayets.

Turning now to the powers and duties intended to be vested in the Tank Panchayets, it will be seen that as an immediate consequence of the constitution of a panchayet in a village, the enforcement of the Tank Maintenance Rules in that village will thereafter vest in the panchayet; and, as a corollary to this, the panchayet will have the power, which now vests in the village patel and the hobli shekdar or Revenue Inspector, to apportion the work required for the maintenance of the tank or tanks in the village among the raiyats according to their respective obligations; and, if a raiyat fails to do the work that is allotted to him or prefers to commute his quota or labour into a money payment, the panchayet will itself get the work done out of the funds at its disposal and recover the cost from the raiyat. The duty of getting work done which a raiyat fails to do now rests with the patel of the village; but, as the patel holds no funds for the purpose, this arrangement has not been found to be satisfactory in practice. Besides, when the patel by himself gets the work done, questions are likely to arise as to the cost actually incurred, but when the duty is entrusted to a panchayet of the leading raiyats their decision in such matters will be accepted without question.

The power to grant the beds of tanks for temporary cultivation of quick-growing crops is at present exercised by the Amildar and the Deputy Commissioner, and is proposed under clause 12 of the bill to be transferred to the Tank Panchayet. Clause 13 provides that in order to avoid the waste of water that may be caused by different raiyats commencing the sowing of wet crops at different times, the panchayet may decide on the time when such sowing operations should be commenced and also empowers the panchayet to regulate the issue of water from the tank. The next clause of the bill, clause 14, also relates to the regulation of the issue of water from tanks, but it introduces an important innovation. This clause provides that a Tank Panchayet specially empowered by Government in this behalf with the consent of a majority of not less than two-thirds of the raiyats whose interests are affected may, in any year, having regard to the quantity of water available in the tank, impose such restrictions as it may consider necessary on wet cultivation below the tank. What now happens in seasons of short rainfall is that all the raiyats holding wet lands under a tank put their lands under wet cultivation, even when it is quite certain that the supply of water in the tank will not suffice for them all, with the result that there is a general scramble for water and all of them suffer from shortage, if not total failure, of crops. Similarly, there is now no restriction against any raiyat holding land under a tank planting sugarcane anywhere below the tank. The result is that sugarcane is planted in small patches here and there, and as this crop requires water nearly all the year round, there is considerable waste of water. To remedy this serious defect in the existing system, this clause provides that a panchayet specially empowered by Government as mentioned above may decide what extent out of each wet holding shall be allowed to be cultivated with wet crops, and, as for the cultivation of sugarcane, to select a suitable piece of land as near the sluice of the tank as possible and parcel it out among the different raiyats who may be desirous of cultivating sugarcane, and if the water in the tank is insufficient even for this to prevent such cultivation altogether. If, in accordance with a decision of the panchayet under this clause, any holder of wet land is not allowed water to irrigate his land and is prevented from raising wet crops thereon, it is proposed to allow a remission of half the assessment on the land. This is the most important provision of the bill.

Several questions are likely to be raised in connection with these provisions. In the first place, is it likely that a majority of wet land holders in any village will be willing to put it in the power of the panchayet to prevent the supply of water for irrigating their lands? Secondly, will the Government be justified in granting a remission of half assessment in such cases? Thirdly, will not this concession entail a serious loss of revenue to the State and will it not lead to abuse by encouraging the holders of wet lands to put their lands out of cultivation in order to secure the remission of half the assessment? To take up the last of these questions first, I think it may confidently be asserted that the panchayet or, for the matter of that, any raiyat will not put wet lands out of cultivation merely for the sake of obtaining a remission of half the assessment. It is well known that the Government assessment on wet lands represents but a small proportion of the income from the lands, and it is not to be supposed that anybody will willingly forego the profits to be derived from wet cultivation except for good and sufficient reason. There need not therefore be any fear of any serious loss of revenue to the State or of the concession leading to any abuse.

The second question is somewhat more difficult, viz., whether the State would be justified, in view of its settlement system, in granting remissions in cases where wet crops cannot be raised on account of insufficiency of water. In Mysore we have followed the Bombay system of settlement under which wet lands are classed with reference to the capacity of the tanks to supply them with water for irrigation, and the assessment on them is fixed with reference to the average of a series of years, good and bad, and making sufficient allowance for occasional deficiencies of rainfall and other vicissitudes. Under this system the Government is not bound to grant either full or partial remission in bad years and the proposed system of granting remissions may therefore be objected to on the ground that it will affect the integrity of the existing settlement. With reference to this I may say that, while I am prepared to hold that a system of settlement, under which a soil assessment and a water assessment are separately imposed on wet lands and the water assessment is remitted when no water is given for irrigation, has the advantage of simplicity and elasticity and may therefore be preferable to our existing system, it is now too late in the day to think of adopting such a system, and the Government have no intention of disturbing the existing system of settlement; but, they cannot shut their eyes to the fact that, in spite of all the care taken by the Survey and Settlement Department in classifying and assessing lands, more land has sometimes been entered in the atchkat of a tank than can properly be irrigated by it, and that although no doubt the assessment fixed on the basis of the average of a number of years works out fairly and equitably in the long run, the vicissitudes of the season often cause hardship in individual cases and in particular years; and, while the Government is not bound to grant full or partial remission in bad years, they have as a matter of fact been giving such remissions in cases of widespread drought. The present proposals go a step further in the same direction. Although no remission is claimable as a matter of right in cases where wet crops cannot be raised on any lands on account of insufficiency of water in a tank, yet as a concession and as an incentive to the raiyats to invest their panchayets with the useful powers contemplated in this clause, the Government propose to allow half remission in all cases where wet lands are thrown out of cultivation under the orders of a panchayet, treating them as analogous to the case of wet lands under tanks which have breached. And this brings me to the question whether the raiyats are likely to agree to put such a power in the hands of the panchayets. It is true that the people have almost lost the capacity for combined action, which implies readiness to make small personal sacrifices for the common good, and it is difficult to say how far the raiyats in a village, especially those holding lands at a distance from the sluice of the tank, will be willing to abide by a decision of the panchayet that in view of the insufficiency of water they should not raise wet crops upon any or all their lands; but, as observed in the statement of objects and reasons, if they are prepared to accept such a decision and show some self-restraint, this will be a measure of the extent to which the spirit of combination and self-sacrifice, which the Government wish to revive, has been brought into existence.

I have already referred to the fact that if the raiyats' personal interest in the tank is to be evoked, the control of the funds set apart for the repair and maintenance of tanks should be entrusted to them. It is therefore proposed that these funds, viz., money payments from the raiyats in lieu of labour and a portion of the irrigation cess fund collected in the village, should be credited to a fund called the Tank Fund to be controlled by the panchayet. As an additional inducement to the raiyats to constitute panchayets, it is also proposed that several items of receipts which are now credited to the general revenues of the State, as for instance, the sale proceeds of the right of fishing in the tank and of the right of grazing in the tank bed, etc., should also be credited to the Tank Fund. These items will go some way towards reducing the cost which each raiyat would have otherwise to incur. Any advance or loan which the panchayet may obtain from the Government is also to be credited to this fund.

The only other clause of the bill to which I need now refer is clause 15 which deals with the construction, restoration and improvement of minor tanks. Under the existing system, as already explained, Government does not undertake such construction, restoration or improvement unless the raiyats come forward and do the earthwork, when the Government gets the masonry and stone work executed. This clause lays down that if the panchayet undertakes to execute such construction, restoration or improvement, the Government may entrust to the panchayet all the work required with the exception of stone and masonry work which will be done at the cost of Government. It is also laid down that the Deputy Commissioner may at his discretion entrust the execution of masonry and stone work also to the panchayet.

I have briefly explained the main principles underlying this measure, and it is unnecessary at this stage to go into its provisions in detail.

We hear so much in these days about the disappearance of the old village communal system of the country, and the Governments both of British India and of the Native States have frequently been asked to try to revive the ancient system. Here, in Mysore, we have had representations made during the meetings of the Representative Assembly asking for the constitution of Village Courts for the settlement of petty civil and criminal cases. There is a general feeling at the present time that we should try and revive this ancient indigenous institution of the Village Panchayet. Whether the old communal spirit can at all be revived is a matter which it is impossible for any one to predict with certainty; but the experiment is certainly worth trying. The scheme proposed in the bill before us is a practical attempt in this direction, and I commend it to the sympathetic consideration and support of the members of this Council. Personally I have every hope that the scheme will be a success in its primary object of improving the condition of tanks and in its ulterior object of reviving the communal spirit. I look forward to a day when the raiyat will have so identified himself with his tank as to feel a proprietary interest in it and a pride in keeping it neat and trim without any prompting from the officials. When such a feeling has been engendered in the raiyats it is possible that they may employ a Nirganti to watch the tank and put earth on it to fill up the holes and gullies and pay him either from their tank fund or by voluntary contributions. They may revive the old system of keeping a buffalo for carrying earth to be put on the bund. The raiyats who personally work in the field may set apart a day in the week or month and turn out to do work on the bund, the non-labouring classes contributing in money or grain for their share of the work. A rivalry will arise between neighbouring villages and one will vie with the other as to whose shall be the best kept tank. And when once the communal spirit is infused into the minds of the people and the raiyats develop the faculty of wisely administering the details of tank management, there is no reason why we should not entrust them with even a larger share in administering their own affairs. The panchayet may in course of time be able to prevent the occurrence of abuses in the collection of revenue, and in the sale of lands for arrears or on darkhast, settle differences among the people, manage their communal concerns and generally act as a committee of vigilance on behalf of the village community. But these are distant visions, no doubt.

With these remarks, Sir, I move that the bill be read in Council.

Mr. K. S. Chandrasekhara Aiyar seconded the motion which was put to the Council and carried.

Mr. K. P. Puttanna Chetty then moved that the bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Messrs. Rajakaryapravina A. Rangaswami Iyengar, M. Kantharaj Urs, S. Narayana Rao, V. N. Narasimmiyengar and Nagappa and the mover.

Mr. Nagappa seconded the above motion.

Rajakaryapravina Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar proposed the addition of Rajamantrapravina Mr. C. Srinivasiengar to the Select Committee and this was seconded by Mr. M. Kantharaj Urs. Both motions were adopted and a period of three months was fixed for the report of the Select Committee.

Bill further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

Mr. S. Narayana Rao:—Sir, I beg to present the report of the Select Committee on the bill to further amend the Code of Civil Procedure and in doing so, I have to observe that the Committee have unanimously approved of the bill referred to them on the 24th February last.

I desire to call attention to the recommendation made by the majority of the Committee in their report, suggesting an improvement to an earlier part of the Section 310A than that covered by the bill.

This Section 310A was introduced into the Code by Regulation III of 1906, and was intended to afford relief to certain judgment-debtors and others whose immoveable property was sold in execution of decrees by enabling them to get the sales cancelled on payment of a certain amount of compensation to the purchasers and of the amount due under the decree to the creditor. The section may, for our present purpose, be viewed as consisting of two parts. The first part deals with the persons who are entitled to apply for cancellation of sales, while the second part lays down the terms on which the sales may be cancelled.

The bill now before the Council deals with the second part only, remedying certain formal defects therein and providing for an appeal against an order passed under this section. The amendments proposed in these respects are admitted on all hands to be necessary and desirable and the Committee have unanimously approved of the same, as I already submitted.

The further recommendation made by the Committee in their report refers to the first part of the section. The Committee felt it was not open to them to deal with this part of the section as being beyond the scope of the bill referred to them.

As this part of the section now stands in the Regulation, it restricts the persons who can apply for cancellation of the sale to the judgment-debtors and to such others as have acquired their title to and interest in the property before the same was attached, and in cases of mortgaged property before the decree directing the sale thereof was passed.

In British India the scope of this part of the section was enlarged (vide Section 2 of Act V of 1894) by declaring it open to every person who acquired his title to or interest in the property at any time before the Court sale thereof, to come in under this section and apply for cancellation of the same. This provision is retained in the new Civil Procedure Code of 1908 also. There are strong reasons in favour of the recommendation made by the Committee and it does not militate against the general policy or principle involved in the section. However, if the amendment recommended by the Committee cannot be regarded as part of the bill, it may be left out, and we may proceed to deal with the present bill which is intended to remove certain hardships experienced in working the section as it stands

I now move, under clause 46 of the Rules for the Conduct of Business, that the bill and the report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration by the Council.

Mr. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, in seconding the motion, added that the question of introducing the Civil Procedure Code as recently revised in British India was likely to be taken up shortly, and that the further recommendation of the Select Committee might be dealt with then.

Mr. Nagappa proposed that the consideration of the Select Committee's report might be deferred to another meeting.

Rajamantrapravina Mr. C. Srinivasaiengar seconded this proposal, and after some discussion the Council resolved to take up the further consideration of the bill at a future meeting.

The Village Offices Bill.

Mr. T. Ananda Rao:—Sir, I beg to move that the following amendments to the Village Offices Bill be now considered:—

(i) Clause 7, sub-clause (5).—The words "subject to any rules which may be made by Government in this behalf under Section 22" shall be substituted for the words "under rules made under Section 22" appearing in line 1 of this sub-clause and placed at the beginning thereof.

(ii) Clause 8, sub-clause (2).—The word "personal" shall be inserted between the words "the" and "law" in the fifth line of this sub-clause, and the word "on" shall be inserted before the words "one of his heirs" in the eleventh line thereof.

(iii) Clause 8, sub-clause (3).—In the proviso to this sub-clause, the words "or removed" shall be inserted between the words "dismissed" and "dies" appearing in line 1.

(iv) Clause (9).—In para 2 of this clause, the words "within a given time" shall be substituted by the words "within such time as may be allowed by the Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner."

Of the amendments proposed, Nos. (i), (ii) and (iv) do not call for any remarks. The amendment in clause 8, sub-clause (2), by the insertion of the word "personal" between the words "the" and "law" would set at rest any doubt as regards the law applicable to succession to village offices in unalienated villages.

Mr. K. P. Puttanna Chetty seconded the motion, which was put to the Council and carried.

Mr. Ananda Rao then moved that the bill as amended be passed by the Council. In doing so, he said :—Sir, I beg to move that the Village Offices Bill as amended be now taken up and passed by this Council. The success of the Revenue Administration depends to a great extent upon the efficiency of the village service. A measure of this kind to regulate appointment to that service has been under consideration for a long time till it is now for this assembly to enact it into law.

Mr. K. P. Puttanna Chetty seconded the above motion.

Rajamantrapravina Mr. C. Srinivasiengar :—Sir, With your kind permission I beg to say a few words before I give my vote in favor of this bill. This is a measure of considerable importance that affects both the Government and the public in general and our village officers in particular. The law on the subject has till now been scattered over a large body of rules, standing orders, executive orders and decisions of Government, many of them not known or accessible to the public. The enactment which has now reached its final stage has for its object the removal of many anomalies and misconceptions which have hitherto existed on this important subject. There have been doubts, uncertainties, ignorance and differences of opinion with regard to several matters connected with village administration. In short, this legislation aims at evolving order out of chaos, and has in my opinion not been undertaken a moment too soon.

Sir, through your patience and forbearance we have had an exhaustive and interesting debate in the course of which all shades of opinion have been elicited and much useful information collected and the subject discussed threadbare from every stand-point. In the result, the measure is now emerging from the crucible in a form which I think ought to be acceptable to all concerned and upon which all of them are entitled to congratulate themselves. It is a pleasure to me when out of office to find myself associated in however insignificant a manner with the passing of a measure in the inception of which I had something to do while in office.

I do not propose to detain the Council by any detailed examination of the various provisions of this bill. Suffice it for me to say that, among other matters, ambiguous or obscure expressions have been clearly defined, suitable provision has been made for appointments and punishments, the principle of heredity has been scrupulously kept in view even to the extent of applying it to absentee heirs and heirs however remotely connected. Provision has been made for suits, applications and references ; in the matter of appeals, we have been extremely liberal in that we have allowed three appeals, a thing which does not to my knowledge obtain anywhere else ; unnecessary restrictions upon alienation have been abrogated ; in short, nothing has been omitted the inclusion of which is calculated to enhance the usefulness of this measure, which I may say has the further merit of being as concise as it is self-contained. If one body of persons more than another is likely to be benefited by this enactment, it is the holders of alienated villages in the State whose troubles are at present as great as their number is legion. Under the new law, they will, in case they show themselves deserving of the confidence of Government, be given large powers, a judicious exercise of which will enable them to more effectually control their staff of village servants. Owing to the complex nature of the subject, this Council has been confronted at almost every step with difficulties of no ordinary magnitude, which well nigh threatened to be insuperable; but thanks to the sympathetic Government willing and ready to make concession wherever this could be done without the sacrifice of principle or the impairment of efficiency, we have happily been enabled to surmount those difficulties in a manner eminently satisfactory. Some idea of the extent of time and attention and labour bestowed by us upon the bill may be formed from the fact that this short measure of not more than 22 sections occupied the Council no less than eight sittings of not less than several hours duration each. I have heard it said in some quarters that the bill is being rushed through with inordinate haste, and that due regard is not being paid to custom and vested interests. In my humble opinion, this is a baseless charge. As a matter of fact, all vested rights have been recognized; the position and prestige of our village offices have been strengthened and raised; and everything has been done to make the measure as popular and efficient as could be done under the circumstances. I am sure that when the provisions of the bill, as now revised and approved by Council, come to be generally understood, they will be better appreciated, and welcomed by the public with gratification and gratitude.

It only remains for me now, Sir, to thank you for allowing us free latitude and encouraging us to speak without reserve even at the risk of the discussion sometimes lapsing into desultoriness; and, I may assure you that this indulgence has not been thrown away; for, as the bill now issues from the legislative anvil, it is a document on which the Province may well be congratulated.

MR. B. NAGAPPA.—Sir, I fully concur in the sentiments [illegible] so eloquently expressed by Mr. Srinivasiengar. As observed by him, the bill contains clear provisions of law on many important questions on which there were conflicting decisions. It embodies all the provisions of law on the subject which were hithereto found scattered in the rules, proceedings and standing orders of Government, which were not easily accessible to the legal practitioner and much less so to the public. It also contains some important changes in the existing law.

It was hitherto a difficult task for a legal practitioner to advise upon any question relating to the holders of village offices, owing partly to the unsatisfactory state of the law and partly for the want of a regulation containing the whole law on the subject. The absence of any settled principle to guide the Revenue Courts led to the unhappy increase of litigation.

Now that this bill which embodies a clear exposition of law is just about to be passed into law, we may expect with confidence that it will prove beneficial to the large section of the community to which it applies. Being fully convinced that this is a beneficent measure, I give my vote for the passing of this bill.

In conclusion, Sir, permit me to express my sincere thanks to you for the kind and sympathetic treatment accorded and the patient hearing given to the non-official members.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

PRESIDENT:—Gentlemen, I need not say how equally gratifying it is to me to see the bill passed at this sitting; and it is a source of very great pleasure to me that such kind and appreciative remarks regarding my share in the passing of this bill have fallen from Mr. Srinivasiengar who was so honorably connected with the past administration and whose experience in so many different branches of the State service has been placed at the disposal of the Council to the great benefit of the discussions that have taken place here. An appreciation from him who has such intimate knowledge of the subject of this bill (we may now call it a Regulation) is most valuable and will go a great way to assure the public and the village community in particular that the Regulation in which they are so interested is the outcome of long and full discussion of the subject from every point of view. They will all feel re-assured from the remarks of such an authority as Mr. Srinivasiengar that every interest has been considered and safeguarded. I may say the same as regards the remarks made by Mr. Nagappa who is another non-official member. Mr. Nagappa is in addition a representative of the agricultural community and his remarks are the more valuable on that account.

I cannot do better in connection with what has been said by the two members than read to you some appreciative remarks from His Highness who, as you know, has been watching the progress of the bill and has been taking a keen interest in our discussions. This is what His Highness has commanded me to communicate to you :—" I desire to congratulate the Legislative Council and its President on the satisfactory manner in which this important and contentious measure has been dealt with. The discussions were full and informing and show that the members, both official and non-official, fully appreciate their responsibility and are prepared to bestow ungrudgingly their time and thought on the measures submitted to them. I should be glad if the President would take the opportunity of the next meeting of the Council, after the bill becomes law, to express my appreciation of the services rendered by the non-official members in particular."

This must be very gratifying testimony to you all and sufficient reward for the services you have rendered in passing the bill through the Council.

The non-official members requested the Dewan to convey to His Highness the Maharaja their respectful acknowledgments for the gracious message which His Highness was pleased to communicate to them through the President and they further assured him (President) that they felt highly gratified and honored that their humble services in connection with the Village Office Bill should have attracted the kind notice of His Highness and elicited his warm approval and appreciation.

The meeting then adjourned.

V. P. MADHAVA RAO,
President.

Notifications by the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore.

GENERAL AND REVENUE.

No. 2, dated Camp, Mysore, 28th September 1908.

The following Order of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, directing the introduction of religious and moral instruction in all Government Schools and Colleges in the State, with effect from the 1st November 1908, is published for general information:—

No. 1, dated Camp, Mysore, 28th September 1908.

The Government of His Highness the Maharaja have had under consideration for some time past the question of imparting religious and moral instruction to pupils in schools and colleges in the State. The tendency of the present system of education, which especially in Government institutions is purely secular in character, is to devote exclusive attention to the training of the intellect, and to leave the character of the pupils to be formed and moulded, in an indirect manner, by the personal example of the teachers, the literary teaching included in the school curriculum, and the nature of the discipline maintained in the institution. The result, as judged from experience and observation, cannot be considered to be altogether satisfactory. That this indirect influence of schools has failed in many cases to form the character of the pupils and make them useful citizens has, as is well pointed out by the Inspector-General of Education, "become only too apparent of late in India. For various reasons the homes of the pupils have ceased to impart religious and moral instruction, and the influence of religious teachers and places of public worship has almost disappeared. Irreverence of all kinds and disrespect for authority have been on the increase. Modesty, self-restraint and good sense are largely at a discount, while presumption, vanity and unrestrained aggressiveness appear to be increasing." Under these circumstances His Highness' Government are convinced that one of the readiest and most effective means of forming and strengthening the character of youth is to be found in imparting religious and moral instruction to them as a systematic part of the school curriculum.

2. There were misgivings at one time as to how, with such a diversity of sects even among the Hindus themselves, a satisfactory system of religious instruction could be devised. But the report of the Headmaster of the Tumkur High School, who was deputed to study the system obtaining in various schools in the Madras Presidency, shows that in practical working the imparting of religious and moral instruction has not been attended with any difficulty. In the schools under Hindu management, referred to in that report, not only do the different sects among the Hindus attend the classes, but even Muhammadan and Christian boys have no objection to do so; on the contrary, they often join the classes of their own accord.

3. The Government recognize that any scheme for the imparting of religious and moral instruction must at this stage be in the nature of an experiment, and that the results may possibly not be all that could be desired. But they feel at the same time that, in the interests of the rising generation, the State can no longer afford to postpone action in the matter. It appears to them that the proposals submitted by the Inspector-General are framed on correct lines and would if adopted constitute a move in the right direction. They are accordingly pleased to sanction these proposals, and to direct that effect be given to them from the 1st November 1908.

4. As recommended by the Inspector-General, the time to be given to religious and moral instruction will be limited to five periods a week, the first thirty minutes after roll-call being devoted thereto. There will be a moral discourse on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and religious instruction on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The moral discourse will be common to pupils of all persuasions, and be based on a text taken from some religious, moral, historical, or literary book. In addition, there will be specific religious teaching from books like the Sanatana Dharma Advanced Text Book, the Koran and approved commentaries and essays on the Muhammadan religion, and the Bible. The curriculum suggested by the Inspector-General and the text-books recommended by him are approved for adoption in all Government institutions, to which alone the present scheme will be applied in the first instance, the question of extending the scheme to aided schools not under Government management being reserved for future consideration.

5. As Mysore is a Hindu State and the bulk of the population is Hindu, provision for imparting teaching in the Hindu religion will be made in all Government institutions (other than those intended purely for the education of particular classes of non-Hindus, as, for instance, Hindustani Schools). The classes will be open for Hindus of all denominations, but attendance will be optional in the case of other pupils. It will at the same time be laid down for the present that, when in any Government institution the number of Muhammadan or Christian pupils is not less than twenty, arrangements should be made as far as may be possible for imparting instruction to them in their respective religions. If, however, any private persons or bodies interested in either of these religions wish to make special arrangements at their own cost for teaching their respective religions in Government institutions where the number of pupils of such religions is below twenty, every facility should be given for this being done.

GENERAL AND REVENUE.

No. 2, dated Camp, Mysore, 28th September 1908.

The following Order of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, directing the introduction of religious and moral instruction in all Government Schools and Colleges in the State, with effect from the 1st November 1908, is published for general information :—

No. 1, dated Camp, Mysore, 28th September 1908.

The Government of His Highness the Maharaja have had under consideration for some time past the question of imparting religious and moral instruction to pupils in schools and colleges in the State. The tendency of the present system of education, which, especially in Government institutions is purely secular in character, is to devote exclusive attention to the training of the intellect, and to leave the character of the pupils to be formed and moulded, in an indirect manner, by the personal example of the teachers, the literary teaching included in the school curriculum, and the nature of the discipline maintained in the institution. The result, as judged from experience and observation, cannot be considered to be altogether satisfactory. That this indirect influence of schools has failed in many cases to form the character of the pupils and make them useful citizens has, as is well pointed out by the Inspector-General of Education, "become only too apparent of late in India. For various reasons the homes of the pupils have ceased to impart religious and moral instruction, and the influence of religious teachers and places of public worship has almost disappeared. Irreverence of all kinds and disrespect for authority have been on the increase. Modesty, self-restraint and good sense are largely at a discount, while presumption, vanity and unrestrained aggressiveness appear to be increasing." Under these circumstances His Highness' Government are convinced that one of the readiest and most effective means of forming and strengthening the character of youth is to be found in imparting religious and moral instruction to them as a systematic part of the school curriculum.

2. There were misgivings at one time as to how, with such a diversity of sects even among the Hindus themselves, a satisfactory system of religious instruction could be devised. But the report of the Headmaster of the Tumkur High School, who was deputed to study the system obtaining in various schools in the Madras Presidency, shows that in practical working the imparting of religious and moral instruction has not been attended with any difficulty. In the schools under Hindu management, referred to in that report, not only do the different sects among the Hindus attend the classes, but even Muhammadan and Christian boys have no objection to do so; on the contrary, they often join the classes of their own accord.

3. The Government recognize that any scheme for the imparting of religious and moral instruction must at this stage be in the nature of an experiment, and that the results may possibly not be all that could be desired. But they feel at the same time that, in the interests of the rising generation, the State can no longer afford to postpone action in the matter. It appears to them that the proposals submitted by the Inspector-General are framed on correct lines and would if adopted constitute a move in the right direction. They are accordingly pleased to sanction these proposals, and to direct that effect be given to them from the 1st November 1908.

4. As recommended by the Inspector-General, the time to be given to religious and moral instruction will be limited to five periods a week, the first thirty minutes after roll-call being devoted thereto. There will be a moral discourse on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and religious instruction on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The moral discourse will be common to pupils of all persuasions, and be based on a text taken from some religious, moral, historical, or literary book. In addition, there will be specific religious teaching from books like the Sanatana Dharma Advanced Text Book, the Koran and approved commentaries and essays on the Muhammadan religion, and the Bible. The curriculum suggested by the Inspector-General and the text books recommended by him are approved for adoption in all Government institutions, to which alone the present scheme will be applied in the first instance, the question of extending the scheme to aided schools not under Government management being reserved for future consideration.

5. As Mysore is a Hindu State and the bulk of the population is Hindu, provision for imparting teaching in the Hindu religion will be made in all Government institutions (other than those intended purely for the education of particular classes of non-Hindus, as, for instance, Hindustani Schools). The classes will be open for Hindus of all denominations, but attendance will be optional in the case of other pupils. It will at the same time be laid down for the present that, when in any Government institution the number of Muhammadan or Christian pupils is not less than twenty, arrangements should be made as far as may be possible for imparting instruction to them in their respective religions. If, however, any private persons or bodies interested in either of these religions wish to make special arrangements at their own cost for teaching their respective religions in Government institutions where the number of pupils of such religions is below twenty, every facility should be given for this being done.

6. In the case of Government Schools intended, purely for the education of particular classes of non-Hindus, provision will similarly be made by the Education Department for imparting instruction to the pupils in the tenets of their religion.

7. The Government consider that no additional establishment should be necessary to give effect to the new scheme, as the existing staff of teachers may be utilized for the purpose as far as possible; and as regards the cost of the text-books required, this will be met from the ordinary Education Department grant.

8. The Inspector-General is requested to issue such subsidiary instructions as may be necessary to give full effect to the orders of Government.

No. G. 3053—G. M. 163-08-18, dated 18th November 1908.

The following Message addressed to the Princes and Peoples of India by His Most Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor of India on the occasion of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the assumption of the Government of India by the Crown is hereby republished for the information of the Public:—

His Majesty the King-Emperor's Message to the Princes and Peoples of India.

1. It is now fifty years since Queen Victoria, my Beloved Mother, and my August Predecessor on the Thorne of these Realms, for divers weighty reasons, with the advice and consent of Parliament, took upon herself the Government of the territories theretofore administered by the East India Company. I deem this a fitting anniversary on which to greet the Princes and peoples of India, in commemoration of the exalted task then solemnly undertaken. Half a century is but a brief span in your long annals, yet this half century that ends today will stand amid the floods of your historic ages, a far-shining landmark. The Proclamation of the direct supremacy of the Crown sealed the unity of Indian Government and opened a new era. The journey was arduous, and the advance may have sometimes seemed slow; but the incorporation of many strangely diversified communities, and of some three hundred millions of the human race, under British guidance and control has proceeded steadfastly and without pause. We survey our labours of the past half century with clear gaze and good conscience.

2. Difficulties such as attend all human rule in every age and place, have risen up from day to day. They have been faced by the servants of the British Crown with toil and courage and patience, with deep counsel and a resolution that has never faltered nor shaken. If errors have occurred, the Agents of my Government have spared no pains and no self-sacrifice to correct them: if abuses have been proved, vigorous hands have laboured to apply a remedy.

3. No secret of empire can avert the scourge of drought and plague, but experienced administrators have done all that skill and devotion are capable of doing, to mitigate those dire calamities of nature. For a longer period than was ever known in your land before, you have escaped the dire calamities of war within your borders. Internal peace has been unbroken.

4. In the great Charter of 1858, Queen Victoria gave you noble assurance of her earnest desire to stimulate the peaceful industry of India, to promote works of public utility and improvement, and to administer the Government for the benefit of all resident therein. The schemes that have been diligently framed and executed for promoting your material convenience and advance—schemes unsurpassed in their magnitude and their boldness—bear witness before the world to the zeal with which that benignant promise has been fulfilled.

5. The rights and privileges of the Feudatory Princes and Ruling Chiefs have been respected, preserved, and guarded; and the loyalty of their allegiance has been unswerving. No man among my subjects has been favoured, molested, or disquieted, by reason of his religious belief or worship. All men have enjoyed protection of the law. The law itself has been administered without disrespect to creed or caste, or to usages and ideas rooted in your civilization; it has been simplified in form, and its machinery adjusted to the requirements of ancient communities slowly entering a new world.

6. The charge confided to my Government concerns the destinies of countless multitudes of men now and for ages to come; and it is a paramount duty to repress with a stern arm guilty conspiracies that have no just cause and no serious aim. These conspiracies I know to be abhorrent to the loyal and faithful character of the vast hosts of my Indian subjects, and I will not suffer them to turn me aside from my task of building up the fabric of security and order.

7. Unwilling that this historic anniversary should pass without some signal mark of royal clemency and grace, I have directed that, as was ordered on the memorable occasion of the Coronation Durbar in 1903, the sentences of persons, whom our Courts have duly punished for offences against the law, should be remitted, or in various degrees reduced; and it is my wish that such wrongdoers may remain mindful of this act of mercy, and may conduct themselves without offence henceforth.

8. Steps are being continuously taken towards obliterating distinctions of race as the test for access to posts of public authority and power. In this path I confidently expect and intend the progress henceforward to be steadfast and sure, as education spreads, experience ripens, and the lessons of responsibility are well learned by the keen intelligence and apt capabilities of India.

9. From the first, the principle of representative institutions began to be gradually introduced, and the time has come when, in the judgment of my Viceroy and Governor-General and others of my counsellors, that principle may be prudently extended. Important classes among you, representing ideas that have been fostered and encouraged by British rule, claim equality of citizenship, and greater share in legislation and government. The politic satisfaction of such a claim will strengthen, not impair, existing authority and power. Administration will be all the more efficient, if the officers who conduct it have greater opportunities of regular contact with those whom it affects, and with those who influence and reflect common opinion about it

I will not speak of the measures that are now being diligently framed for these objects. They will speedily be made known to you, and will, I am very confident, mark a notable stage in the beneficent progress of your affairs.

10. I recognise the valour and fidelity of my Indian troops, and at the New Year I have ordered that opportunity should be taken to show in substantial form this, my high appreciation, of their martial instincts, their splendid discipline, and their faithful readiness of service.

11. The welfare of India was one of the objects dearest to the heart of Queen Victoria. By me, ever since my visit in 1875, the interests of India, its Princes and peoples, have been watched with an affectionate solicitude that time cannot weaken. My dear son, the Prince of Wales, and the Princess of Wales, returned from their sojourn among you with warm attachment to your land, and true and earnest interest in its well-being and content. These sincere feelings of active sympathy and hope for India on the part of my Royal House and line, only represent, and they do most truly represent, the deep and united will and purpose of the people of this Kingdom.

12. May Divine protection and favour strengthen the wisdom and mutual good-will that are needed for the achievement of a task as glorious as was ever committed to rulers and subjects in any State or Empire of recorded time.

No. 274-P.—Whereas the Governor in Council is satisfied that there is danger of an outbreak of plague at Tiruvellur in the Tiruvellur Taluk of the Chengleput District, if persons from the Mysore State and other parts declared to be infected with plague are permitted to visit that place on the occasion of the ensuing Tai New Moon and Brahmotsavam festival of Sri Viraraghavaswami :

Read :—

Government Order No. G. 5086-94—G. M. 327-04-14, dated 17th April 1906, prescribing a procedure for effectively dealing with complaints concerning damages caused on occasions of military manœuvres and deputing a special officer of the rank of an Assistant Commissioner to attend to such matters.

2. Government Order No. G. 8139—G. M. 12-06-68, dated 27th June 1907, revising the Mysore Civil Service Rules.

3. Also Government Order No. G. 2910—G. M. 175-08-1, dated 12th November 1908, sanctioning the appointment of an additional Assistant Secretary to the staff of the General and Revenue Secretariat.

No. G. 3147-85—G. M. 22-08-24, dated 24th November 1908.

ORDER THEREON.—In view of the fact that the British Military troops cantoned in the State take part in the ordinary drill and other manœuvres from time to time throughout the year, it has become necessary to employ a special officer to accompany such troops during the manœuvres and settle compensation promptly for any loss or damage to crops caused by the troops and thus obviate inconvenience to the raiyats as far as possible. It has been found desirable for various reasons that such an officer should be of the status of an Assistant Commissioner. Government have found that, owing to the large number of probationers in training, officers on leave, etc., the reserve of 8 officers provided in para XIV (1) of the Civil Service Rules issued with the Government Order dated 27th June 1907, is insufficient to permit of an officer being always deputed for this duty. They are therefore pleased to sanction an addition to the Cadre of Assistant Commissioners, and direct that the reserve of 8 officers referred to above be increased to 9. Para XIV(1) of the Civil Service Rules of the 27th June 1907 will be amended accordingly.

2. The Secretary reported to the Council that the Village Offices Bill had received the assent of His Highness the Maharaja on the 16th day of October 1908.

Bill to recognize the representative character of the Administrator General of Madras.

MR. K. S. CHANDRASEKHARA AIYAR moved for leave to introduce the above bill, and in doing so said :—

Sir,—I beg with your permission to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the better recognition of the representative character of the Administrator-General of Madras in respect of the assets of deceased British subjects in Mysore.

I may state at the outset that the subject is one that has been under discussion between the Government of Mysore and the British Government since the year 1902, and that the object of the present Bill is to give effect to the understanding that has been reached as the result of such discussion. The legislation proposed is therefore more or less of a formal character.

Next, as to the object of the Bill. The Administrator-General's Act, II of 1874, extends not only to the whole of British India, but also, as far as regards British Subjects of His Majesty the King Emperor, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with His Majesty. For purposes of administrative convenience, Mysore has been included in the definition of the "Presidency of Madras;" and Section 23 A of the Act declares that probates or letters of administration granted by the High Court at Madras to the Administrator-General of the Presidency of Madras shall have effect over all the assets of a deceased British Subject throughout such Presidency including, of course, the Mysore State.

Since, however, the Act in question was not included in the schedule to the Instrument of Transfer as one of the enactments in force here at the time of the Rendition, and has not since been extended to Mysore by His Highness the Maharaja, it is not part of the territorial law of the State, though of course it is binding as a personal law on British Subjects resident herein. As a consequence, unless the Courts of Mysore are empowered by means of local legislation to recognize the status of the Administrator-General, the provisions of Section 23 A, already quoted, cannot render an authorization by the Madras High Court sufficient in all cases.

The members of this Council may not be unaware that the Mysore Government have already to a limited extent recognized the legal status of the Administrator-General of Madras. For, in clause (ii) of Section 4 of the Succession Certificate Regulation, VII of 1901, it is provided that a Court in Mysore may accept, among other things, a certificate granted under Section 36 or 37 of the Administrator-General's Act, 1874, in proof of the representative title of any person applying for the passing of a decree or for the execution of a decree or order for payment, against the debtor of a deceased person.

What is now proposed is to go a little further and to recognize the representative title of the Administrator-General (under probates and letters of administration granted by the Madras High Court) against all debtors of, and all persons holding property belonging to, deceased British Subjects in the State. For this purpose, a general extension of the British Act is unnecessary, and it is found sufficient to enact a short Regulation on the lines of the Rules framed in this behalf for the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore in a notification of the Government of India of the 15th September 1905.

The Council may rest assured that no loss of stamp revenue will accrue to the State by the arrangement outlined above. It has been settled that the fees payable under Article 11 of Schedule I of the Court Fees Act, 1870, in respect of grants of probate or letters of administration to the Administrator-General, shall, in the case of property belonging to deceased British Subjects situated in the Mysore State, be made over to His Highness' Government by refund from the British Treasury. This, however, is a matter for executive action between the Governments concerned, and will not find a place in the Bill.

With these remarks, I beg to move that leave be granted to introduce the Bill in question into the Council.

RAJAMANTRAPRAVINA MR. C. SRINIVASA IYENGAR, seconded the motion.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

A Bill further to amend the City of Mysore Improvement Regulation, III of 1903.

Mr. T. ANANDA RAO moved that the bill be read in Council, and in doing so said :—

Sir,—At our last meeting the Council were good enough to accord to me leave to introduce a bill further to amend the City of Mysore Improvement Regulation, III of 1903.

The Bill has been printed and published under Notification No. 121, dated 31st October last, and I have already explained its main purpose and import. I now beg to move that it be introduced and read at the present meeting of the Legislative Council.

Owing to the non-contentious nature of the proposed enactment and the importance of giving effect to the provisions of the Bill at an early date, it seems to me that the Bill need not be referred to a Select Committee under Rule 45.

MR. K. S. CHANDRASEKHARA AIYAR seconded the motion.

The Bill was then read by the Secretary.

MR. M. C. RANGIENGAR supported the motion and said,

In this connection, I beg to submit, as a member of the Mysore City Improvement Trust Board, that it is more than three years since a recommendation was made by the Board to the Government that the Trust Regulation should be amended on the lines of this Bill. At that time it was thought that the Municipality had ample powers to get the necessary works executed, and it was not considered necessary to confer these powers on the Trust Board. On account of the want of these powers in the Board, however, a good deal of the work of improvement which could have been done during the past three years has been left undone. Under these circumstances, the present bill comes not a moment too soon. I have therefore much pleasure in supporting the motion.

The motion was thereupon put to the Council and carried.

MR. T. ANANDA RAO then proposed the suspension of the rules of business to permit of the bill being finally considered and passed at this meeting of the Council. This was seconded by MR. NAGAPPA and the motion was put to the Council and carried. The bill was then finally considered by the Council and passed.

A Bill to provide a law relating to Treasure Trove in Mysore.

RAJAKARYAPRAVINA MR. A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR :—Sir, I beg to introduce the Bill to provide a law relating to Treasure Trove and to move that it be read in Council. Before proceeding to refer to the provisions contained in it, I propose to give a short account of the law on this subject at present in force in Mysore. It is contained in the Rules published under the late Chief Commissioner's Notification No. 6 of 1867, and had been adopted from the Madras Regulation XI of 1832. But, having been issued without the sanction of the Government of India, the Rules were not included in the schedule to the Instrument of Transfer and so early as in 1886 the questions as to their legal validity and the expediency of the introduction of a Treasure Trove Act were raised. A Draft Regulation was prepared on the basis of the Government of India Act, VI of 1878, and subjected to careful scrutiny and revision from time to time, and a final draft was prepared in 1894. But in connection with an appeal from an order of the Deputy Commissioner of Shimoga regarding some coins found in a temple under the Chief Commissioner's Rules, a proposal was made to retain the said rules with some minor alterations as regards wording and procedure. But no final action was taken even on this proposal and ultimately it was decided with a view to remove all doubts as to the validity of the existing Rules to introduce a Regulation based on the British Indian Act, VI of 1878.

The principles of jurisprudence applicable to the rights to Treasure Trove or property found hidden underground have differed at different times and in different countries with reference to the ideas prevailing therein as to the rights of property of Government and of individuals.

It is scarcely necessary to enter into any explanation of those principles. They have been referred to in detail in the speeches of the Hon'ble Member who piloted the Bill in the Legislative Council of the Government of India, and it is sufficient to remark that the Draft Bill does not contemplate any material changes in the fundamental principles underlying the provisions of the Chief Commissioner's Rules which have been in force in the State for so many years. Nor is any argument needed to recommend to your acceptance the enactment of a measure on the lines of the British Indian Act, VI of 1878, which has been passed in the legislature of the Government of India after mature deliberation and after careful consideration of the laws on the subject in force in almost all the civilised countries of the world. We are on safe ground in adopting the provisions of such a measure, the more especially as our aim has always been to bring our laws in line with those obtaining in British India. Though drafted on the model of the Indian Act, there are, however, a few material alterations which I shall presently refer to. The chief aim of this Regulation is to prevent the concealment of the discovery of any treasure and its appropriation by the finder to the detriment of the right of persons interested and, what is of greater importance, to enable Government to acquire such articles as may be of historic or artistic importance and worthy of preservation in the interests of the public.

The Bill accordingly requires that intimation shall be given by the finder of the discovery of any treasure and provides penalties for omission to give such intimation. It recognises the right of all persons who can prove an antecedent property in it. This antecedent right is however permitted to be asserted and proved only in cases where there is presumptive evidence that the treasure was hidden within the previous one hundred years. Provision is also made to determine the respective rights of the finder and the owner of the land where the treasure was found, when such right of property is not established. All claims to the treasure and disputes as to the ownership of the land are to be referred to Civil Courts for adjudication. The remaining clauses relate to the procedure to be followed in carrying out the above provisions.

The Bill differs from the British Indian Act, VI of 1878, in the following particulars :—

(a) The right of Government to the excess beyond one lakh when no person other than the finder has established his right to a share (clause 17). This is taken from the Chief Commissioner's Rules, though there is no similar provision in the Indian Act.

(b) As between the owner and the finder, the Indian Act allots three-fourths to the finder and one-fourth to the owner. An equal division between the two is considered more equitable and the Bill provides for this accordingly (clause 12).

(c) When the Deputy Commissioner proceeds to sell the treasure under clause 12, he is required to take the orders of Government as to the particulars of sale.

(d) Power is reserved to Government to make rules on matters incidental to treasure-trove not provided for in the Bill.

I need not discuss at present the reasons which led to the proposal of these alterations, as the provisions of the Bill may have to be considered by a Select Committee and brought up for discussion in this Council before it is passed. With these brief remarks, I beg to move that the Bill be read in Council.

MR. S. NARAYANA RAO seconded the above motion, which was put to the Council and carried.

RAJAKARYAPRAVINA MR. A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR, then moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee composed of MR. ANANDA RAO, RAJAMANTRAPRAVINA MR. C. SRINIVASA IYENGAR, MR. NAGAPPA, MR. NARAYANA RAO and the mover.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

Bill for the Regulation of the Possession and Sale of Poisons in Mysore.

MR. K. P. PUTTANNA CHETTY moved that the bill for the regulation of the possession and sale of poisons in Mysore be read in Council. This was seconded by MR. K. S. CHANDRASEKHARA AIYAR. The motion was put to the Council and carried.

The Bill was then referred to a select committee consisting of MR. K. P. PUTTANNA CHETTY, MR. RANGIENGAR and MR. S. NARAYAN RAO.

The Police Bill.

MR. K. P. PUTTANNA CHETTY moved that the following amendments to the Police Bill be considered :—

(1) The following shall be substituted for clause 26 (1) :—

"Clause 26 (1). Any officer authorized by Sub-Section (3) in that behalf may—

(a) suspend, reduce or dismiss any Police Officer below the grade of Assistant Superintendent, or

(b) impose on any such Police Officer who is guilty of any breach of discipline, misconduct or neglect of duty which does not necessitate his suspension, reduction or dismissal or who, by any act of his own, renders himself unfit for the discharge of his duty, any one or more of the following punishments, viz. :—

(1) fine not exceeding one month's pay ;
(2) deprivation of good service pay ;
(3) removal from any office of distinction or special emolument ;
(4) entry of a black mark against his name in the manner prescribed by rules made in this behalf ;
(5) forfeiture of leave ;
(6) punishment drill ;
(7) extra guard, fatigue or other duty.

Provided that the punishments mentioned in clauses (4), (6) and (7) shall not be imposed on any officer of or above the rank of jamedar."

MR. ANANDA RAO seconded the above motion.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

(2) Clause 46, sub-clause (1) (b).—The words "or competent authority" shall be inserted between the words "Magistrate" and "under" in line 2 of the above sub-clause.

The motion was also seconded by MR. ANANDA RAO and was put to the Council and carried.

(3) Clause 46, sub-clause (3).—The word "under" shall be inserted between the words "issued" and "this" occurring in line 3 of this sub-clause.

The motion was duly seconded and was then put to the Council and carried.

The above amendments having been passed by the Council, MR. K. P. PUTTANNA CHETTY moved that the Bill as amended be passed by the Council.

MR. K. S. CHANDRASEKHARA AIYAR seconded the above motion.

MR. M. C. RANGIENGAR supported the same and said,

MR. PRESIDENT,—This is a very important Bill on which I may be permitted to make a few observations before the motion is put to the Council.

The Secretary announced to the Council to-day the assent of His Highness the Maharaja to an important Bill, viz., the Village Offices Bill. No scheme of Police Administration can be successful which ignores the importance of the village servants. Appropriately, therefore, the Police Bill comes close upon the heels of the Village Offices Bill. The Village Offices Bill having been passed recently the proper time has now arrived for passing the Police Bill.

One of the principal objects of this Bill is to bring the village servants into direct relation with the organized constabulary. In British India the same attempt has been made and the experiment is being watched with interest. The last Administration Report shows that the authorities there could not pronounce the results of the experiment as altogether satisfactory. But they hope that the scheme will prove a success in course of time. But, in Mysore, the conditions are slightly different and the attempt to bring the village servants into direct relation with the regular Police force is, I submit, likely to be more successful for this reason, that in Mysore the village servants are not under a dual control as in British India. The village servants are under the control of the Amildar whose status and connection with the Police have been emphasised in the Bill. The Amildar is the head of the Police in the taluk and being also the head of the Revenue administration of his taluk, it seems to me that it will be practicable to co-ordinate the regular force with the village servants. For this reason, the experiment must necessarily prove more successful here in Mysore than outside it.

As regards the provisions of the Bill itself, I have very little to submit for the consideration of this Council, because the Bill, immediately before it was introduced into Council, had been considered by a very strong Departmental Committee consisting of the present Revenue Commissioner, the present Second Councillor and other distinguished officers of the State. They discussed the provisions so thoroughly and so well that, when the Bill emerged from the committee and came before this Council, even a reference to the Select Committee was scarcely necessary. The Select Committee which was later on appointed made very few alterations and, when these were placed before the Council, the Council considered it desirable to adopt the recommendations of the original Committee. A few important changes were, however, introduced which met with the approval of the Council.

One great object of the Bill is to make it possible for the executive to render the Police force as efficient as possible. It goes without saying that mere legislation will not make the Police force efficient. A great deal depends upon what rules the Government will make under the Police Regulation and the way in which the provisions of the Regulation and the Rules will be worked. It must be conceded that this Bill gives large and extensive powers to the Police force, powers which it is possible may be misused by unworthy officials. It is a matter for the anxious consideration of the Government to see that these extensive powers are not misused by the Police force. Men of character, intelligence and energy must be encouraged to join the force. But these are matters which the Government should consider in its administrative aspect and with which this Council has nothing to do. But, I make these humble suggestions with a view to impress upon the Government the necessity for improving the Police force. That there is ample scope for improving it cannot be denied and, I submit, that this Council has done its best to provide a very satisfactory piece of legislation towards attaining that object. I heartily support the motion that this Bill be passed into law.

The motion was put to the Council and carried.

The Council then adjourned.

President.

Government are pleased to sanction the following rules relating to admission to High School classes and to promotions in Anglo-Vernacular Middle and High Schools. These rules will come into force from January 1909 :—

EDUCATIONAL RULES.

Admissions to High School Forms IV to VI.

I. Ordinary admissions to High School Forms IV, V and VI shall be made within a week from the date of re-opening the High School after the Christmas holidays. Admissions of candidates who fail in the Matriculation Examination shall not be made to the VI Form later than the 10th day after the announcement of the results. When a pupil on account of illness or other serious reason is unable to appear for admission within the prescribed time, the Headmaster shall have discretion to receive a formal application for admission before the last appointed day, but in such cases both the fact of provisional admission by application together with the reasons for it and also the date of commencement of the pupil's attendance shall be reported for approval to the Circle Inspector.

II. At the beginning of the second term, admission to High School Forms IV to VI shall be made on or before the second Monday, only on the production of a transfer certificate. At other times of the year admissions by transfer certificates shall be allowed only for very special reasons such as the transfer or death of a parent or guardian, and all such special cases of admission shall be reported for approval to the Circle Inspector.

III. A pupil coming from another recognised High School shall not as a rule be placed in a Form lower than that for which his transfer certificate declares him eligible, except on the results of a written examination in English and Mathematics to be held when considered necessary. The questions and answers of such examination shall be preserved in the School records to the end of the academical year.

Size of High School Classes.

No additional pupil shall without the sanction of the Inspector-General of Education be admitted to a High School class when there are already forty pupils on the roll, unless the management is prepared to divide the class into two sections within a period not exceeding two months from the date on which the number on the roll first exceeds forty.

Rules for promotions in Anglo-Vernacular Middle and High Schools.

I. Promotions shall be made on a consideration of the results of the Annual Examinations and a corresponding valuation of the class work during the year.

II. The School Council or the Headmaster and the Assistant Masters engaged in teaching a class shall together decide the promotions.

III. No boys shall be promoted who fail to get 35 per cent marks in English and 40 per cent on the whole.

IV. Promotions shall be decided before the day on which a School re-opens after the Christmas holidays and announced on the notice board on the morning of the first working day of the year. Promotions, after they are once announced on the notice board, shall be final and not be altered under any circumstances.

V. No promotions shall be made on trial.

VI. No boy shall be permitted to remain in the same class and the same Anglo-Vernacular or High School who has not obtained promotion for two years. But this rule shall not apply to boys of the VI Form.
